"I spit at your feet, conqueror. Slaver. You hold dominion over those you deserve not to rule. Nor do they want your rule. Feel the scar you bear, it is proof of that. If you were wise, you would collect from them tribute, but would not assume to command them. In doing so you commit a grave misstep. And how dare you kill elders? Your people's wisdom! It is an insult to all that is decent in the world! I would have your head for this, fool! Now get you from my sight, and take your mind-dulling plants and divine from their burning elsewhere. I will not tolerate such an affront to the Mother here."

"My. In this sea of confusion, of terms and concepts beyond our age, do I espy an islet of simplicity? A warlord. Free of the menial layering-on of politics so apparently beloved by practically everyone else in this accursed place, this maze of intrigues and dry un-wit. She is a warrior, one who stands by her own might, as befitting her station. How reinvigorating indeed! My ordinary scoffing at one who rules by inheritance makes way for a level of respect, for in her deeds one may see her seat as having been admired - seized. She seeks power, and that quest is perhaps the purest, most admirable of all. A woman after my own heart, had I any use for the crusted old thing. Of course, she is not without her share of issues - as all seekers of strength, she treads a fine line between that noble pursuit, and a fall into rapid despotism. One whose prerogative is the maintenance of one's position over others, no matter the cost, is a wretched, deplorable creature. And then, of course, her willing self-shackling with the chains of the so-called divine. To see one bearing such strength, such impulse, and yet insisting on subordination to some mewling, powerless godlet is a tragedy. Still, she stands a far cry above most others here, and her presence truly refreshes these old eyes. May her aspirations guide her to strength unending... and may her sword one day meet mine."

"You fought bravely, and overthrew the previous leaders, this has proven your strength and your right to lead, even if I do not want to admit it. And yet you have done nothing for your people in power. Your practice of leaving people to their own devices, not rendering any assistance to those in need, has inevitably led to those most unfortunate in society being worse off than before. I admit that your claim of merit has some points, but for those who never had the position of merit to begin with, it is not a fair judge of one's ability. I hope you can reflect on your own history, and give help to those who need it most in your country."

EDIT as of 12th Sept: And please try your very best not to reserve or call dibs on posting. I know it's not nice as an OP for me to make rules like that, but let's just call this an etiquette.

This is not pointed at anyone in particular, and just a general statement. So see, the idea of getting ninjaed is that while it's a tad annoying, you open up for more opportunities for yourself in order to post and write more. Usually a good thing unless you are just so tight on time.

A dibs or reserving post, personally to me, is a bit jarring. Often times the person happens to be away, and you were left without a reply for 30+ mins, on top of causing more trouble for nations below you especially when you have multiple characters to choose from and you gave no indication of which character to reply to.

So... In short, I'm not like straight out banning it as an OP, but just be very considerate to one another, and embrace being ninjaed, for the lack of a better word. It's not nice when you reserve a post, only to never come back and help someone with equal effort.

Please do carry on, and have a great day! <3

/Skip me, BN please reply to Zitragrad.

Already, I have warmed to her because of her initial impressions. despite the political differences, she is willing to forgo them for the sake of good relations, which is what a good leader would always do. her academic prowess is most admirable. There are a few views which I can definitely agree with, and her views on the advancement of science and technology is always a plus... the secrecy, while i'm not overly fond of, i can understand some of it, especially her position as a military scientist... Still, personally, she seems very pleasant as an individual and has shown cordial views towards me. I am happy to return such to her. overall, my views are positive."

I disapprove- as habit in this place has brought me to- of his applying of complex terms to common-sense ideas like "capitalism" and "communism", though I suppose that's a battle I've lost long before I arrived. I admire his faithfulness to his traditions, and his commitment to making rational decisions rather than ones inflamed by ideology. That is something I could manage better, I admit. And yet I know that we would never meet as friends, if we were to meet. For all his admirable traits he is still an example of decadence, and this I cannot admire, no matter what else he is."

WORD of The President

"This man calling anyone else peculiar is laughable in complete honesty. High Executor Kal'Shazzar of Godular is sincerely an enigma. He is militaristic and expansionist but not in an way that can truly be called imperialistic in the bourgeois sense. He adopts the expansionist ideology of millennia past. Not the expansionist ideology of the imperialist, colonialist, or fascistic bourgeois state. However there is reason to oppose him for his unethical approach to scientific study. An unethical technocrat is a terrifying concept. His history has also left him ascribed the terms of 'war criminal' yet at the same time he has done enough to warrant redemption in the eyes of his people.

The duality of this man makes it hard to form an opinion on him I am... wary of him I don't want to form a serious stance until or unless he is a real threat to Venus, Ankras, and the people of Ankras."

"This Exarch grinds every possible gear in my body. You can parade yourself as a champion of the people but you can never truly be one if you're in a league of your own. You have the powers of a god in the palm of your hand and that's supposed to grant you the right to rule?"

Don't get me started on your 'Let's all be friends' attitude! There's a reason even Ambrosia cut back on her friendly, open nature. Some people in this universe do NOT deserve respect, mercy or kindness. You cannot market yourself as a kind-hearted soul in this cold universe of ours. Sitting on that fence for too long will eventually break it, honey. You're going to have to get off of it soon enough and start making enemies.

You're less of a leader and more of a champion honestly. A figurehead to be honest. What receipts do you have that prove your competence at state-building? Just another walking vessel of Utopian ideology. Bah! Oh sure! You'll listen to what your people have to say but you can't trust them to take matters into their own hands and improve their livelihoods without the approval of their goddess? Do whatever you want but I double dare you to call yourself modest again!"

- Victoria Hoffmeister

"Now come on, look, she's clearly a well-meaning dragon lady! It's a sign of compassion and good nature for one so powerful to offer their services and life to their own people. Have you ever thought that maybe they prefer this style of rule, Vicky? Look, so long as the integrity of the Platinians isn't undermined, I'd say she has the right to rule and care for them.

Look, I don't see why you're so worked up. Maybe you're just being a bit too proud to admit that you're just as stubborn, with that 'My way or the highway' attitude. You can stomp your feet all you want but fact of the matter is, styles of governance vary wildly across the stars. Don't be so surprised."

- Ambrosia von Carstein

"So one should lose their right to govern their own affairs and make their own decisions because the sweet omnipotent dragon-lady says so? Fantastic! And here I thought you were the micro-managing cunt, Ambie."
- Victoria

Statement of the Supreme Acolyte about Exarch Sera

Isn't this the creature that gave a negative appreciation of my glamorous self some while ago? My memory isn't as good as it was 200 years ago. Anyways, this creature is a fool, she possesses great powers and wastes them providing for her people! Why, I ask you, should she help her people? That makes them lazy and uncaring, the people need a strong hand to guide them not to soften them even more. So, in short, bah. Such splendid powers wasted in such a deluded fool.

Statement of the Supreme Acolyte about the Countess

Another democratic leader? Where are those who have understood the dangers of the tyranny of the masses? I swear, if I see one more democratic leader I'm going to scream. And if her acceptance of democracy wasn't proof enough of how deluded she was, she's also a pacifist! Renounces to humanity's greatest strength, the hunger for blood! For an otherwise intelligent person (as humans go) I cannot understand how hasn't she understood the perils of democracy and equality! Bloodshade will soon be on my "to eliminate list".
