It's a yuri manga. I can't pin what exactly it is but Revolutionary Girl Utena? Don't know much about early older yuri works? If it's yuri?

That princess out there is a lesbian princess - she's very happy being gay.

It's The Rose of Versailles, which is from decades before Utena was even conceived.

It's also technically not yuri. (Only technically not, it still has the main character who's the female commander of the French Royal Guards who basically all the women at Versailles openly admire, took no offense when fuckin Marie Antoinette asked if she'd be dancing with a man or a woman [and she ended up dancing with her], her protégée is outright in love with her [and admitted that she thinks the protagonist and Antoinette look like a good couple when she sees them dancing together], takes it as the highest compliment when the sister of one of her acquaintances outright tells her that she'd like to marry her if she were a man, has a 'suitors ball' to find a suitable husband but secretly invites the members of her 'fan club' who are angry at the men for 'stealing her away from them' and just dances with members of her fan club [who are all women] and even kisses one of them. Really the only things that keeps it from outright being yuri is the fact that the main character gets angry when a book is published claiming that the only reason why she, a woman, is the commander of the Royal Guards is because she and Antoinette are secretly lovers)

Weebs that are Stalinists. Do you know how weird it is to see an anime girl right next to Mao or Lenin? I wonder, if they've come back from the dead and watched anime(or even some hentai) would they regret their revolutionary actions? Or would they do it again, but with even more massacres?

Maybe it's Ur-Yuri you know the kind of yuri thats possible in Japan before social advancement took off before people can draw about lesbian love between two schoolgirls idk

What's the deal with rainbows? I mean sure, they are pretty, but why do people think they're gay? So there's a rainstorm, then it stops and the sun comes out. When people look at the new rainbow, do people think, "Oh, it's pretty!", or do they think, "That's gay"? What is up with that?
