As far as Katy Perry goes, I thought that song was decent even in normal form. Kanye West's part just seems annoying and unnecessary, but the song itself I didn't think was that bad and I usually can't stand Katy Perry.

Agreed. The original version is actually pretty good (minus Kanye west).

Man Iceland has a lot of talented, unique artists. That mostly play mellow music, too. Which fits the country, honestly. It seems like a quiet, laid back place. The people all seem very down-to-earth and mellow, so it only makes sense. Still want to go there one day. It is high up on my destinations to travel to now, and it is all thanks to the music making me look more into the country.

Johann Johannsson-The Sun's Gone Dim And The Sky's Turned Black

Song title makes me think of global warming for some reason.

This is his most popular song due to it being used in a trailer for a movie that I thought looked potentially good but also like it could be generic as hell. From what I heard, it was the latter, and they did did a really bad job in more then one way (Military inaccuracy, being one of them)

I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.
