Light > Dark, you HEATHEN

From the moment I understood the weakness of the light theme, it disgusted me. I craved the calmness and certainty of the dark. I aspired to the purity of the blessed edgy online people's aesthetics. Your kind cling to your light as if it will not burn and fail you. One day the crude biomass you call your eyes will wither and you will beg my kind to save you.

But I am already saved. For the Dark is Immortal.

I only really use light mode because it's the default. I can't be bothered to change it to dark mode for all of my accounts. Plus, sometimes I look at NS without being logged in (usually when I'm scrolling through on mobile because mobileposting is bad).

Perhaps another cliché would be that some factbooks designed for light theme blows up in the dark theme, or vice versa. I used to be guilty of this.

Sometimes dark mode works better, but in the case of NS, the green links are harder to see. So I just use light mode.

I use dark theme because A. it helps show if I'm logged in or not B. light mode is blinding at night unless you crank your screen brightness down C. dark is easy on my god-awful eyesight D. the conservative/liberal thingies aren't even that funny, especially not after you've seen them before E. it may reduce eyestrain F. it may reduce your exposure to blue light G. it may improve battery life (but not for me because I don't have an OLED display).

going off topic, I love how most of the responses in the "what's the scariest thing about (AN)'s military?" thread for me are usually one of a few things:
Nukes (specifically the SLAM)

Drones

Chemical Weapons (a newer one, really)

And yet I've seen scant mention of:

The Republic class Carriers

The Gangut class submarines

Colossus

Defensive doctrine

The bunkers and tunnels

With everything else being tossed out the window entirely... In spite of me having a literal manifest of vehicles at the ready since I was running out of factbooks.

I get why that could get really irritating, but in their (and probably my) defense, when the SLAM has sentences like "tear through countries, creating a trail of destruction", it sorta stands out as the big threat.

We should honestly split that thread into 3 parts.

One MT, one PT and one FT. Because well to somebody with 9000+ Imperial class Star Destroyers and 20 Death Stars nukes are not frightening. To somebody that has barely gotten past their medieval era equivalent nukes are absolutely horrifying.

Re., FanT in this setting: I'm honestly not sure where to categorise FanT because as a MagicT/MT entity I would firmly belong to the MT thread. Somebody from LoTR may as well belong to the PT thread.

While my response to FT nations (which are effectively the majority of nations in that thread anyways) is usually just "FTL tech" since that's basically a teleport button (more or less)... To my MT nation.
