"President Paula... While I approve some of her motions, such as improving national education or inspecting aircraft... can't have these thingies falling on someone's head. But trust me, I don't approve anti-gun policy even a bit. She and her people may believe, that it makes the nation safer, but I don't. To us, right to bear arms is the matter of national security, so we can fight off the tyrants, who come to take away our freedom or shoot a hole in any terrorist, who tries to kill our people. Let's just say, that trying to ban guns in our place is a political suicide or a special kind of masochism, cause guns are too ingrained into our culture. But by no means, this policy is a dealbreaker. She is not a tyrant and we are more than willing to conduct diplomatic relations with Redershein should she ever desire to do so. Dossier says, she is anti-communist. I don't know why she is against communism... I feel, she is more against past communism implementations rather than ideas themselves. Either way, I'll just make an offer of diplomatic relations and wait." - Overboss Liam Navarro

"It is hard to believe that a man indulged in so much sin and vice is able to govern and hold together an already lawless and immoral country such as Sky Reavers, but it is barely the strangest thing I've seen around here. Our countries are on so many aspects total polar opposites of each other- like thesis and antithesis- the result of a massive difference in cultures.

"Okay, so who do we have here? Paula Gredenztin? Alright. Well, she seems to be a pretty great leader for her country as the... president-minister? That's an unusual title for a leader. But anyways, it's quite obvious she is an effective leader. Her policies on education are definitely helping improve the education of the citizens of her country, and her enforced inspections on purchased aircraft also seem to be pretty efficient. Her economic stances are great, as she supports a stable economy and opposes Communism, like I do. Lastly, her support for developing nations is quite admirable. In regards to her policy against weapons, I think it is good and could prevent crime, so I will laud her for that. Overall, she is a great political figure for her country."

QUOTE

"I guess I'm back. After my last experience with this interesting site, I was convinced by myself that I would probably not revisit the place for at the very least a long while, but I suppose life can be one unpredictable monster at the best of times. Maybe I'm here because I am curious to who I can meet. And maybe I'm here just as a distraction. But either way, I don't want to dwell on it for too long, and I am sure none of you want to hear it either. I, of course mean no offense saying this either... Well, except maybe towards a certain someone who decided to respond to me before, but that's in the past now.

Right then, I suppose I should get on with it? Good day to you, President Gledeshin of Redershin. If you wouldn't mind me doing so, could I start with how interesting the country you serve seems to be from my... Well, I suppose I'll call it "un-worldly" perspective, which is slightly true. A kingdom located between Jutland and Great Britain present on a surprisingly large landmass is really something to picture, because where I come from, let me just say nothing of the sort exists, not even potentially a collection of small islands, at least I think so. Redershin reminds me kind of about that old Ice Age landmass within Europe I have heard from time to time... Doggerland? I guess the landmass that connected Europe to Great Britain did not completely submerge where you come from, which is something that I am quite curious about. But I digress. I'm not here to talk about your lands, or rather the lands that "adopted" you, am I? Allow me to get onto the actual subject that this thread is asking for.

Hopefully you can accept my apology if my opinion piece on you is a little short, but alas that's the way it is most likely going to be. So your life did not begin in the land that is a remnant of old Doggerland, but rather in a country that most certainly exists within my own world; Moldova. I remember Tiraspol used to be home to an unrecognised state known as "Transnistria" but I believe that it had been integrated into the larger country bordering it after some negotiations not too long ago, but I digress. You were born in Tiraspol but through your father you had a connection to the lands you would eventually come to call home. But for the meantime, Moldova is where you would stay where you had studied in both primary and secondary school within it's borders. But this wasn't to be... Honestly, when I tried searching for anything mentioning the reasons why you and I assume your family left Tiraspol and Moldova to Redershin, I came out unfortunately empty handed, so you will have to excuse me. It could be that life in Moldova was too harsh; I believe that Moldova is one of the economically weakest nations within Europe, at least where I come from. It could be that your father just wanted to go back to his old home, but then it could be any number of reasons, correct? Anyway, once there you managed to become naturalised I assume to the country and eventually became a member of the Redershin Crown Party. It took only two years for you to become something much bigger than a simple politician of the Crown Party though when you ascended to Foreign Minister. Honestly, how quickly you managed to ascend up the governmental food chain of Redershin seems rather unbelievable, but I shouldn't make that seem as if you aren't worthy of congratulations nonetheless, and let me give you that right now.

Oh, and it seems as if you are very popular within your country. You won the 2014 election by... Am I reading this correctly? 96% of the Votes?!

I... I don't have any knowledge on the election season or what other parties you were up against, but now that is truly unbelievable. There's corrupt dictatorships within my own world which don't make their success rates in "elections" seem so ludicrously weighted. I'm not saying Redershin is anything like those, not at all. I'm just a little confused is all, and it doesn't take away from the successes you've managed to give for your country either, like your focus on Education within the country which is a very important thing to focus on, in my opinion.

Now... There isn't really much else to talk about. You can speak I assume six or more languages, which... My goodness, Это много, чтобы жонглировать et c'est vraiment louable. Sometimes I struggle with three, and nowadays I am trying to relearn Inuktitut as well.

Also, congratulations to your marriage to Jacopo, I wish the two of you everlasting success in that field, but I honestly can leave it only here.

So, in conclusion, though the biography I have picked up to read of you seems a little on the small side, I have to say that I have little reason to think of you as anything less than good. Granted I am still a little queasy over those 2014 election numbers but I don't know the full context. So I bid you farewell, your excellency Paula Gredenzin and I hope life continues to go well for you, your husband and your two children."

Ilyina Romanova, the Tsarina of Alaska

"Right then, finishing off with her excellency Paula Gredenzin, I believe I now have to give my thoughts to another person of interest, one Waldemar Rochester, Supreme Leader of... Crossoveria? That's certainly an interesting name for a country, but in what power do I really have to judge that? Never mind that, though what I do find rather strange about Crossoveria is the presence of...

Anthropomorphic animal people for one, and to juxtapose that rather fantastical element, - which I do stress, I have absolutely nothing wrong with - this biography itself mentions many relationships that the country shares with countries that exist in my own world, Libya, Iraq and Syria to name a few. Already that has gotten me rather confused as to what kind of world his excellency Rochester resides in, but I digress. I'll try to keep my head... * ahem * Metaphorically and just go through the paces of what I think of the Supreme Leader.

So, you were born from parents of major Congolese descent, whom moved from the government of Leopold II over the country, one that was awfully brutal, repressive and quite so broke all modern laws on Human Rights to this Crossoveria. First of all, I should wish them an immense congratulations from managing to escape that brutal totality of the Congo Free State to what I assume to be a better land, and that you, Waldemar had the pleasure of growing up in a place that was not that.

Speaking of the time after your birth, you would go onto take a path that your parents did not, not one of religion but military. I can't say it would be something I would ever consider myself, not that I myself am the most religious person, but... Well, I am a bit of a pacifist and I personally hate the continued conscription laws of my country, but I digress. I think it's worth it to comment that you took your own path in life which is quite commendable, and that the path you took was one that you proved very successful in.

Now, hopefully you can forgive me if I do not have much to comment on about your life within the military and eventually your position as General, because to be honest I am woefully uneducated when it comes to those matters. It's interesting though that some of the conflicts you mentioned you served in, like the Persian Gulf War and the civil wars of North Africa and the Middle East like Syria and Libya all took place in my own world as well, which once again compounds my confusion.

Apparently, you were quite successful in that former conflict and by the time of the Arab Spring you was much more a commander than anything else, though you do claim to actively support the late Muammar Gaddafi's son in a bid to rule Libya, which... Well, I have heard good things about Gaddafi every now and again which breaks away from the common Western perspective, but at the same time he was a dictator of a country which might have been more stable under a democracy, but I digress, because I do not know much about his son.

Now, in the first month of 2021, which... Well, it is currently 2019 here but never mind that, you performed a coup against the government of one Zeeter Salvidar and became Supreme Leader yourself.

Your own rule has... Apparently been better than Salvador's, but after reading about it all it's a mixed bag... Sure, you have let in more Western Media and you support the rights of those Anthropomorphic people, but... Well, there's a bit of hypocrisy that I just have to bring up regarding your "trend" of "supporting the rights of those within your country". I can not, in any regard ignore the fact that you have allowed your government to continue persecuting the LGBTQ movement to the point of executing those who openly show their non-heterosexual relationships. It's a problem a lot of dictatorships; especially within the Middle East have and I would say the same thing to any of them, but by all that is good, executing them? That's awful, and you're awful for allowing it to continue. And about the hypocrisy, you can support the rights of other cultures and races but can't extend the privilege of further freedoms and human rights to those whom swing a different way? You really don't have any justification for that, even if you think you do. Perhaps if you gave the LGBTQ movement as much credence and care as you do as other aspects of the country you run, perhaps my tune would change. But for now, I can only condemn you for it.

And that extends somewhat to other points about you as well...

Suppressing popular opinion if it disagrees with you and your rule is one such thing, and the maintenance of dictatorship in a country that does not want it, as shown by the popular demands for elections which you granted at only a surface level, token value is another. I will not ignore the good contributions you have made such as being rid of the ACE regime before you or the continued peace with this "Cartoonia", but you have a long way to go before I can consider you in any way a ruler beneficial for your people.

Alas, I do wish your family well, Mr. Rochester. And for their sakes, I wish you well as well. But for the time being, I could care less if I never have to talk about you again... Goodbye, "Supreme Leader" of Crossoveria."

*Right, hello there BN![1] As usual, I'm going to provide to you a little forenote that I'd very much prefer a response that isn't a couple of lines going over really surface-level details, or something that can be seen by just scrolling through the initial sidebar, or anything like that... Now I bet I won't have to worry about YOU doing that, but I will /still/ me those kinds of posts if I receive them, because... Well, let's be honest, we all know that you guys can do better than that, eh?

*Now I'm not asking for a giant post full of multiple paragraphs, no no. I do that, but doesn't mean I expect others to go out of their way to essaypost. Just a paragraph or two perhaps going into decent detail as to how YC[*2] thinks of my own and that shows you have read more than the surface level details will do ^ ^

Alaska

The Tsardom of

Царство Аляски, or the Russian Empire lives on in it's old colony, Alaska after the conclusion of the Russian Revolution of 1917. Standing with it's allies against the Moscow Accord of Russia and it's alliance members, nevertheless world tensions dwindle and the people of Alaska grow ever more desensitised with the conservative status quo, and their insistence on clinging to a now redundant past.

"I suppose I should give my thoughts to Tsarina Ilyina Romanova. First off, I officially send my condolences on the sudden disappearance of your father, former Tsar Alexander IV, from Kieslow Castle in Redershein. You are one of the youngest monarchs I have ever met to ascend to the throne, and you are already doing so much for the Russian Empire and the Tsardom of Alaska.

Upon further research, it seems you are into video games just as much as I am. I remember having purchased a PlayStation, and playing a game called SimCity 2000. Anyways, let's not blabble TOO much about how much we have in common... Let's dive straight in, shall we? I do apologise if I do miss out anything about you, Tsarina Ilyina.

As I have stated before, you seemed to have ascended the throne after the sudden disappearance of your presumed deceased father back in 2014. It has taken a toll on your studies as well as your mental health, which I am hoping you are recovering well from. You also currently hold the world record for being the youngest monarch to ascend the throne, from what I can recall.

You seem to have created a campaign on eradicating the climate crisis, from what I can assume is one of the things your country faces a great threat of. You are also very compassionate about your people and the natural beauty of Alaska.

Some tidbits about you that I have picked up are that your favourite colour is Sky Blue, your favourite type of printed media is Historical Fantasy, and your three favourite music genres are Classical, Pop Rock and Jazz, although you claim to have no preference on the music genre that you listen to.

For now though, Tsarina Ilyina, I must bid you Auf Wiedersehen. Please, keep being compassionate for your country. We may cross paths with one another in another world. And I do apologize if my thoughts about you have become a bit long-winded. - His Highness, King Wesley III of Redershein Hello BN! Just a side note, when you do Redershein's leader, it is preferred that you choose King Wesley III, as he is the head of state. Plus, we kind of have a lot of world leaders' thoughts on President-Minister Paula.

"Hmph. I don't think I've ever been so disappointed in a monarch before, even constitutional monarchs. This 'king' is a rather pathetic sort. What has done? Nothing. What has accomplished? Nothing. Does he even have the power to do anything? Highly unlikely. I do so miss the kings of days past who could dictate the future of their nations with a wave of their hand and a flick of their wrist; at least they had agency. This man seems more like a puppet than a leader. Getting paid to do nothing? How terribly parasitic! Ironical that he's apparently a Leftist. Oh pitiful king, please, stop boring me! I beg you! Do something fun or interesting! Stage a coup, have someone assassinated... anything! All that wealth and all those titles wasted on a man whose every conceivable breath is worth less than the beggars on his streets. In fact, forget this pompous clown. The homeless population of his country is probably much more interesting. Perhaps I should do an opinion piece on them instead?"

"I know not about your past or the culture of which your Ūmazagi thrive on, and I will not as such make judgements on your people, but I have many on you as a person. Many dictators and tyrants of the past in my world will at least justify their actions behind a sensible facade of some kind in order to masquerade the tragedy that is violence, war and genocide, but you seem to have an almost sadistic tendency for it, one that I could personally estimate is beyond the actions of many a warmonger in history... but not in a good way.

After some talks with a few individuals who have managed to survive encounters and have witnessed everyday life in Arvemeduzh, the people you rule over are simply and utterly broken by the fear you have created. All this suffering, for a nonsensically edgy goal only horrific madmen of the highest degree could follow, that being complete anarchic terror over realms whose mindset would be comparable to vile street hooligans or the ideal 'bloodthirsty horde' an enemy would revel and bask in exploiting in order to give excuses to inflict more casualties.

You're clearly inflicting this misery and violence on other as a facade. As said before, I know nothing about your history, how you grew up or how you were created, but I have known many who would do the same if they had your position and power. And many of them felt abused their whole lives, perhaps early in their childhood, scarred and traumatised by events either completely menial or miserably tragic, or simply rejected and cast down upon by the society they live in, and when they have been unable to conjure the mental strength to cope with their problems in a healthy and concise manner, they turn to obscenity and violence against the weaker ones around them in whichever way they deem is acceptable and in your case, you somehow have fearmongered and gaslit an entire culture into doing the same. However, while you seem to completely lack any empathy whatsoever, though the fact you can show respect towards certain people who, by your definition, show 'humility', at least displays signs that there may be some hope for you to return to the dark place you purposefully tucked yourself away in. Even in the most twisted and horrendous of individuals, there is a certain part of them which desires to do the right thing, even if their idea of the right thing is not the correct idea, and from that part of their soul, good can take over and rejuvenate them under the right circumstances, allowing them to see the errors of their ways and atone for the bad things they have done the best they can. Though seeing the effect your rule has had on the mindset of your entire people, and the mindset of the worlds who have to face your presence, it would take an incredibly long time and incredibly drastic actions to redeem you as an individual, so therefore, my opinion of you will stay negative until then."

Overall... I suppose I should be humbled. Am I? HA! No. He is inhuman in the sense that he's beyond human, yet, he has his head stuck so far up his ass it's come out the other end with a reliance on "peace" and "pacifism" to get his way. That's called cowardice, my dear pupils. Now be ready to take notes here:

The man has lived over a hundred years, yet he refuses human nature. Ironic, being human. It is human nature to fight and desire conflict, otherwise, we wouldn't be alive. Now, while he does seek a peaceful and calm life, life is anything but that! I suppose his traditionalist views have screwed the way his brain works, but he was indoctrinated into it by society regardless. I won't be surprised if he refuses to embrace transhumanism, or even rejects the idea of advanced infantry. In fact, I'm fairly certain I and I alone could roll his stupid little pile of dirt with nothing more than an armored car and a rifle.

Regardless, even if he is an insult to humanity, I should probably give him a medal for actually living so long. Even if I'd rather (attempt to) execute him for denying what comes natural, while I've embraced the very thing he hates.

It is very interesting that the president was this young, the general average here is 75, it is not good to be this young, it is more vital how much she knows that the country will rule! She supports chemical weapons and is pro-war, has done interesting things before. Someone who spent his entire youth in the army can even lead the country to disaster in a few years. Being an alcoholic is another bad situation. Even her advisor is too young! This woman needs an old man next to her...

do all this to a statue of a monk. Hell, I imagine, that if a drunkard tries to punch him... ol' Chun just gonna dodge in such way, that drunkard's own force is used against him. But if some loco pendejo somehow by some miracle really manages to piss him off... Well... may the afterlife have mercy on his sorry ass. I mean, if data is valid, this dude could easily wipe the floor with me or Shawn in combat! Hell... he can survive even a nuke! Dude is a livin' demigod!

And all he wants is to live a simple life in peace and harmony. Where he teaches his apprentices about virtues of patience, temperance and restraint. And no, ya' can't have these monks as allied force to fight in your wars, no matter how many times ya' say "please". Birbin' him with mundane possessions is also as futile as tryin' to make us straight edge. He will be neutral to all, judgin' folks for their inner character and integrity. He always gonna take a diplomatic option... always. We don't exactly agree with such pacifism... Our philosophy is that sometimes freedom and good can be achieved only through force. We believe, that there are bastards in this world, who deserve punishment for the sake of justice for their victims. And for loot for us as a pleasant bonus. We have been pacifists in the past, during the Golden Age... but we were conquered and oppressed for 25 years. Everytime, we would try to appease our oppressors with words... he would torture and kill us. We have lost the faith in pacifism since then... But we still respect pacifists nonetheless.

Either way, even if I like this guy, I don't think, that we could establish diplomatic relations with him. He is just too isolationist and won't agree to this. But still, I'll make an offer. Even if he will most likely refuse it. After all, won't know if won't try. I could learn some ways from him... but that would be rather hard either. Philosophies are different. He is orderly guy, who is about discipline. And I am chaotic and spontaneous. Hell, I never meditated in my life... Tried once, too boring for my taste. Besides, I gotta tend to my people. I sometimes wonder, what he would think of me..." - Overboss Liam Navarro

"Supportin' wars in Middle East and these Al-Qaeda terrorists? What the hell, dude?! So many people died! And... how does one gets trauma from being impressed by the skyscrapers? That's rather far fetched if ya' ask me. Or maybe that actually was due to assassination attempts, which is more likely? Either way, ol' Licaria is a president, who in the past made a series of questionable decisions and wasn't exactly well liked, but despite that, he managed to attain such a position. I don't know, maybe he could have stayed a banker? And have life with less stress. I don't think all this stress with consequences will be good for mental health. Either way, not he got many stains on his past." - Overboss Liam Navarro

"I usually hold respect for our elders. They are forekeepers of the past, men who continue to contribute to society even in their greatest ailments with their experiences and the memories we share with them in our families. But you are nothing more than a miserable, despicable old man. Your biography indicates you had no struggle, and you spent your life as a banker and politician, which I could respect enough, but what makes you utterly detestable and pathetic is that you supported the Muhamadian terrorists when they had attacked a civilised nation on that fateful day. You funded it from your own pockets, and because of that, this war on the heathen idol Mahound has become our apex mission once more.

You sided with the serpent of Islam, and all it did was benefit you. I have heard libels, canards, stories and conspiracy theories brought up by many a fool against the Jews, the original followers of our God, and I have not trusted them in the slightest, and I distinctly remember we opposed such things as the genocide at the hands of the horrendous Nazis and that foul book about the 'Protocols of the Elders of Zion'. I even hold a close tie to Israel for all the care it has given to the great city of Jerusalem, but you make me doubt my respect for them as a whole... Does your conspiracy theory-type involvement in the September 11 attacks prove these ignorants right, perhaps? Is there no heathen who holds respect for us Christians, the sons of God and blessed by our savior Christ? If so, know that you are deserving of whatever demise you have at the hands of your assassin, and that you will burn with Judas in Hell, as among the very few Jews who we see as heathens worthy of damnation."

"Ah, if it isn't a fresh new face, ruling a nation which has opposed us in the past... it appears here you were elected a while after getting your degree. You did some funny tricks and feats in college, perhaps consuming unfathomable amounts of alcohol and drugs, and then the council decided to appoint in some kind of strange surprise initiation. How charming, how charming... and I see you also have some excellence in the field of combat, perhaps even having previously fought in the war against us for all we know, but nonetheless, a man who fights for his people is one I can have some respect for. Even your compatriot Shawn has that quality... Now, since you seem much more reasonable than your compatriot Shawn, so how about we strike a deal? Shall we say... the return of our rightful islands of Mare Antiliarum? At least St. Bartholomew? I know it's not exactly professional to bring up disputes when concerning one's personal opinion on a leader, but... I think it's an important matter to address. Plus, we are willing to pay out a handsome sum, say... $500 million, to start?"

IC: the Order of Mare Nostrum, but are also known as the Knights of Mare Nostrum or simply Mare Nostrum.

Anthem: Ave Regina Caelorum

The Knights of Mare Nostrum are an order formed in 1189 centered around islands in the Mediterranean after the Knights Hospitaller and Templar merged, along with the integration of other knightly orders, serving as a militarized Papal State which utilises what is essentially hyper-militaristic canon law.

"Grandmaster Baldassar Cagliares of the 'Order of Mare Nostrum'. I had thought such relics of the dark ages had long since been expunged, but apparently he and his brethren remain. He and his order have apparently changed little over the centuries, remaining caught up in medieval dreams of knightly chivalry and glorious crusades. I can scarcely imagine anything more pathetic. The feudal age has long since passed, torn up by the fires of bourgeois revolution and cast into the ash heap of history, and with it went all illusions of the sacred order. Except, it seems, amongst this colony of deluded reenactors, headed by the most deluded man of them all. Without even getting into his temperament and reactionary beliefs (can they even be called reactionary when he seems to think it is still the middle ages?), it is obvious that Cagliares is an opponent of everything the Combine stands for, an obstacle in the path of world revolution. A farcical obstacle, perhaps, but an obstacle nonetheless."

"Ah, Giulio Suriano. When I first heard about this man, I thought he would be a good leader, but after learning about him, I now possess relatively negative views of him. Let start off with his support for Communism and opposition to capitalism. As someone who opposes Communism and personally does not buy into it, I of course would condemn him for his support for it. But it's very clear he is committed to this, and it has gotten to the point of him intensifying commitments to foreign intervention and a military buildup. I support the latter, but why foreign intervention? I get that he's opposed to capitalism, but I don't think foreign intervention is necessary at all in this case.

Overall, Giulio Suriano is a leader dedicated to his beliefs, of which I personally am opposed to. While I understand his opposition to capitalism, but I feel some of his actions he does to go against it are just, in my opinion, unnecessary."

For a long time, he succeeded in doing his duty in the military with respect. It is terrible for us that he is a capitalist! He's tough and oppressive, it must be tough to face him

Since there are no possibility, that any fruitful diplomacy can ever occur, I'll have a field day thinkin' of insults and jokes about him! "USA badly wants this dude to go... Gotta be for his questionable choice of things he supports. Yet, he doesn't want to do so. Why not? After all, he got lots of money to just retire on some beautiful beachside and sip mojito, while enjoying the sun and the sight. Livin' a stress free life. While his country will also live a good life too. But no, he is gonna stay! And will face even more attempts, until either his people revolt, or some assassin gets lucky. He won't let go, and his country doesn't have much time left to decide if they really want him or not. Either way, I have feeling, that he will have to let go and finally retire no matter if he wants this or not." Overboss Liam Navarro

E-he-he-x ... Another "heretic" with which the outside world is so rich, but this one at least does not interfere much.

His political views are somewhat ridiculous (For example, "Hates fascism, no matter what ideology it comes from" sounds funny, as if fascism can be non-far-right.) , and his attitude towards drugs and other too low things is simply disgusting.

On the other hand, this is certainly not the worst option for their country.

"Alright, now I have to make a statement about Her Majesty, Alexandra, Queen of the British. Where shall I start... She also had some rather interesting life, although, with far less wacky adventures, violence, drugs and such. And she actually studied through her university unlike me. I just used charm, brains and ran lots of errands favors in order to pass the exams. I remember, how I passed philosophy exam, while being high on lots of drugs, or how I even lost my arm, when I was doing the "Twelve labors" for rector in exchange for thesis. Then I got a replacement, that is even better than my former arm. And she... she just passed her exams and showed some impressive athletic prowess. In soccer league. Meanwhile, my athleticism was more combat oriented and everyone knows, that Sky Reavers, me included can't play soccer for shit. Despite me being physically fit enough for two hours of intense fighting in a duel with one of the best warriors.

And then, it looks like disser covers lots of details about her deeds. I bet, spymaster and her boys had a field day with all these tabloids describing all and every detail of her life. As far as I can tell, she tries to be a People's person and a face for her country. And I gotta say, her country has such a pretty face. I don't care what some her rivals can say, being a face of a nation is a really important job. She is the one, who represents it on the international arena, using her charm and eloquence to sway the hearts and minds of the people and leaders of other nations. In fact, she is one of the pillars for her country. And not only she uses her charm and intelligence in combination, she also has to use correct timing and deep understanding of human mentality.

I don't envy her... cause she is bound with lots of royal protocols and such and she has far less freedom than me. I sometimes wonder, how would she feel being the Overboss of Sky Reavers. Perhaps, far more free. She might also wonder about my lifestyle and our culture... She would be shocked if she learns more about us. I mean, for example assassination attempts. I don't care about security metal seeking device and such or stopping the events. If some assassin strikes... I just either shoot him or slay him with blade through his heart. Then I loot his corpse. Or, I can get away with really many things, like I can drink, smoke weed, and hell... can have sex with any consenting adult I want, cuz we are egalitarian semi-anarchist republic and don't believe in bloodlines. Only in merit, character and prowess. I can wear whatever I want, cuz our people are socially libertarian as hell, and I can go adventuring.

Either way, I am looking forward to meet her one day. I think, that given our some similarities it wouldn't be a hard task to establish diplomatic relations. Perhaps, I could even challenge her to a debate or two, or perhaps have a race on the airplanes. I am also rather skilled as a pilot, ya' know." -Overboss Liam Navarro
