I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

Deerhoof-Behold a Marvel in the Darkness

This is one of those bands I quite enjoy, but can't find myself listening to on a regular basis. And I can rate them high but not think I'd listen to them enough to be worth putting them onto "Wishlist".

Where someone like Bjork regularly gets rated high by me, and I think every single one of her albums except her newest I have on wishlist.
