"This Karl Mutignghamen sure is mysterious, isn't he? There is nothing on him at all, not as far as I know. Still, hide in the shadows if you want, but I shall therefore instead judge the nation that you lead.

West Litaurdia. They are not unlike the German Empire that our ancestors fought with back in the First World War, but even worse than them, they insult other, democratic nations like Tsarstvo Alyaski by claiming they do their actions for the sake of 'holiness'? There is nothing holy about a military state, they upset the peace of the world with their push for expansion, war and nationalism. Perhaps there is a reason why mr Mutignghamen hides in the shadows without revealing anything about himself, because if you are anything like the nation you lead, you will be disliked, and allow me to be the first to condemn you if that is the case.

If you prove me wrong with official evidence that you are a force for good, I will eat my words. However, I currently seriously doubt that I will need to do so."

President Lukina Mikhailovna, of the Leyboristskaya Partiya Alyaski.

(OOC: AN, please create some sort of dispatch or factbook detailing at least one of your leaders, and I respectfully ask that you refrain from posting in these kinds of topics until you do. Trust me, it would be the best move to avoid ridicule.)

Dam, I got /ninja'd hard, I spent that long writing?

"I feel torn on Felix Parčetić, to be very honest. On the one hand, I appreciate his efforts to support the working class, and help reduce the influence of the rich 1%, but on the other hand, I am a little scared that he leans too far on the left side of the political spectrum, like many Alyaskis, even as a Social Democrat, I hold a grudge on Communism, and the far left.

But, perhaps that is too harsh, especially for sir Parčetić. He came from Yugoslavia before it's fall, and managed to lead a nation very much far away from his home, especially impressive because he is in no way Canadian. He had a tough life, suffering from violent anxiety as the bad side of Capitalism strained his home life, including his relationship with his parents... Many of his policies are very agreeable indeed, I just hope that he never takes his socialist ideas to Marxist - Leninist beliefs, as such a system would most likely cause Canada's downfall, like it did to the Soviets.

Be it as we may, you have many admirable traits and actions, Felix... I do hope that Alaska can still share a great friendship with our closest neighbor."

President Lukina Mikhailovna, of the Leyboristkaya Partiya Alyaski.

"The longer I live, the more I learn about human belief—or 'mortal' belief, I suppose. It seems one really can make a god out of anything, even an ill-tempered, alcoholic warmonger. The irony of Admiral Kaloru is that they do not seem to realize how much Yona despises being worshipped. By calling themselves a 'messenger' and their propaganda a 'sermon,' I suspect Kaloru is setting themselves up for a serious reprimand once Yona recovers from their recent illness.

"Then again, perhaps it is inevitable. If the illustrations in these Bibles the Anglicans and Catholics keep giving me are to be believed, Kaloru rather resembles a six-winged seraphim. How appropriate, then, that they have decided to be Yona's messenger angel. Yona claims to be a being of mighty power and perfect reason, but is that not how Sir Staley and Bishop Kiyooka describe their God? If Yona continues to insist on being omnipotent, they will have to learn to become accustomed to being worshipped by people such as Kaloru who recognize the gap between themselves and their creator."

So it seems that certain groups of powerful barons have created a monopoly over valuable combustible resources within your nation! One side supports and egalitarian society while the other doesn't? Despite the fact they are identical in nature? Come now, you make me look smart in comparison! Elite materialistic groups despise rule by the masses. They always have and always will. Dare I say from my limited amount of knowledge, you are nothing but a pretty pawn.

In the process of turning you into beasts, they must've whisked away your capacity to think, I believe. Poor child. To be so sexualized in the age of information. Merchants continue to be evil, no matter the era they are born in."

AN: "Claiming to have survived an apocalyptic event? So called 'nuclear bombs' destroyed your world in the process, whatever that may be. Punishment from the heavens for humanity's insolence perhaps? The gift of knowledge ended up cursing you and your kind, I reckon, and fate decided to seal the deal for humanity. Billions of humans gone in the blink of an eye by the command of a few. Such a waste of life. Does the mask of happiness you wear on your face indicate genuine emotion or is this a coping mechanism?

Tell me, I hypothesize that only a few elites were responsible for plunging your world into what I presume to be apocalyptical fire. Riddle me this, why do you continue to employ a top heavy system of governance then? Once more, you make the same mistakes as your ancestors! Placing the lives of many in your hands and in the hands of your comrades alone! I'm sure you must feel powerful, cheerful and influential in the very moment but what happens when you aren't? Do not fear the masses, embrace them."

"I've given my opinion of Akhens-Ari previously, but that was speaking as a historian. Now I have had the most unusual experience of meeting her not as a historical subject, but as a person, interacting with her in Forum7 and Ask the Nomad. I... cannot quite claim to be able to reconcile these experiences with my natural understanding of the universe. But it is fascinating nonetheless and worth talking about.

"Ari is... shyier than I expected her to be. Though 'shy' isn't quite right, she—she speaks her mind when she wishes to. Oh, nothing riles her up like a snob or an arrogant buffoon. She can become very forward and quite cutting when she's being critical! But in other circumstances, she is unexpectedly self-effacing, diminishing her own accomplishments and doubting herself. She sees her own shortcomings so easily—not eloquent enough, not canny enough, not tactical enough—I fear she still lives in the shadow of her father, and his are big shoes to fill. When faced with expectations—or, not expectations so much as—when people need her, or rely on her... Ari willingly steps up to the plate, but that is also when she seems to feel least confident.

"I always had a soft spot for the Bringer of the Flensing Wind, from the moment I read a biographical sketch in a history book. But it is one thing to admire an accomplished warrior woman and feel for her struggle against imperial civilization, and it is quite another to actually meet that woman and realize—and realize just how human she is, and just how inadequate ancient Bronze Age documents are for capturing the picture of a person's totality."

Councilor Akitamoto Fujio

"My boy, you take 'thinking big' to a whole new level! A war with the afterlife itself? Oh my days, that's some daring! I don't recognize the gods you fight—if indeed they are gods, as I suppose I am making assumptions! Who's to say if your universe's afterlife is managed by gods or not?

"But anyhow. Let's take a step back from the big picture and see where you might appear a little more human. Ah, in your youth you favored the humanities but chose to study computer science? I can sympathize. I loved Japanese literature and even considered studying it in school! Ah, but I feared it would not be practical, so I pursued economics instead. It's served me well through my life, and I came to enjoy it, but I'll admit it was not my passion. Seems that for you as well, the practical choice has served you well, Sven Vasa, and you've used your engineering know-how to design some remarkable inventions.

"Mm, and even at that young age, you had a strong sense of collective well-being. I do not think I would have had the courage to try and stop a superweapon, but I am glad there are brave men such as you! Bravo on stopping the superweapon!

"Your bio is incomplete as yet, so for now I will hope you disabled it completely. If you instead decided to use the superweapon for your own purposes of conquest, well! We would not have a conversation about it, as I would be covering in fear, but know that's what my principles would have me do, haha!

"As far as premiers and leaders like her go, Fukushima isn't exactly anything too interesting, or at least among all the other leaders who usually have some sort of ridiculous edge to them. Of course, getting the big seat at 34 without seizing it by force is a wonderful achievement, I might say. Though things like welfare policies do bother me a fair bit, it's not necessarily the biggest of concerns for me when you look at the part where the biggest issue in her rule was quarrels over bloody tape manufacturing of all things.
