The Resheph are introverts on a universal scale. They stay to themselves, living only within their supposedly perfect society.

Caleshan society is split between "mobile tribes" and "sedentary tribes"; mobile tribes are the baseline for Caleshan society, with many sedentary communities developing out of a specific mobile tribe, and mobile tribes possessing much of the influence over society due to their more active lifestyle and engagement with a wider array of enterprises. Despite this, sedentary tribes are more populous, and are responsible for the construction and maintenance of most of the 'real', permanent buildings within Caleshan.

Apparently they rebelled against their status as a Japanese protectorate by telling a joke. Japan immediately responded with a retributive salvo consisting of another joke.
