Wait, no one else listens to the game soundtrack of Tropico 3-4 while dictating?

Just me?

I might like democracy IRL, but that won't stop me from crushing rebels in a fictional country dammit.

Why does anybody post in these threads? There's no discussion and everyone who's posting is just trying to get noticed.
Like someone is actually going to read through 450 pages of people spouting their unique snowflake music and notice you and say "WOW GOOD JOB ON LIKING _____".
These threads are pointless.

Not true. There actually is discussion on here. And most of us have probably found new music we like that we would otherwise not have found had somebody not posted it here (happened at least once for me). I don't know why sharing our music warrants such a rant, or why you took the time to even post on this thread if you think it's pointless...

This post is pointless and all this post is about is getting noticed. Exactly what you're complaining about that this thread is SUPPOSEDLY about.

It isn't.

And that's exactly why I try to put links into my posts. It lowers the threshold to check the song. Just one click instead of opening youtube and typing/copy-pasting the title and then searching. (And if I don't link I'm either on with phone or the song isn't available in youtube).

I used to post links all the time, but stopped because it was easier while I'm multitasking in many ways at once to just post a simple reply. And my YouTube Favorites maxed out at 5,000, so now I have less sentiment to be on YouTube anyway.
