An alternate history version of China in which the alliance between the Kuomintang and the Communist Party never broke down, eventually resulting in a federalized, democratic China. Though one of the world's strongest economies and an emerging superpower, China continues to suffer from high rates of income inequality, an overreaching and sometimes corrupt government, and cultural issues that continue to persist despite the efforts of many reformers over the decades. Most factbooks are still an active WIP.

"I have some difficulty understanding the nuances of what has been translated to me, but I believe I have a fine enough understanding to form an opinion on Lady Mei Lifen. First I cannot approve of how she came to power, republics are inherently troublesome with how the plebeians are able to put into power anyone who is not fit for rule. Not only this, but they often end up forming sides in attempts to out compete the other with lies and false promises, instead of keeping everything in harmony like a properly run state. Imagine the lunacy of a republic electing a jester tradesman who had no experience in running an estate, this is the madness republics are breeding grounds for.

But this isn't to rant and rave about my distrust of giving the rabble power, but my opinion on this fair madam. In which case I approve of her actions of building housing for the needy, as such is written as a virtue in the Good Book, same for caring for the well being of her peoples health, and of the children, she is truly doing the Lords work. I have no idea what most of this stuff about a Green Dream is about, but I can only assume that it is also truly good work, one must be sure to not piss in their well, as a manner of speaking. perhaps this is a part in a effort to limit the spread of miasma? I seem to be reading that out of this, and it makes sense with what her goals appear to be.

Beyond that I see some foreign squabbling, nothing unique, and stuff about her personal life, which I care less than her effectiveness as a ruler, but it further paints a good picture of her. I would say that disregarding how she came to power, I approve of her greatly, and she has a true noble heart, if her people were to see reason, and if she was granted the right by our Lord in heaven, I could easily see her being granted the divine right to rule her land of China as Queen, as she clearly has the right traits to create a prosperous realm to last."
