Plastic Beach - Gorillaz. Or more specifically, Glitter Freeze.

I think its very good.

All Our Bruised Bodies and The Whole Heart Shrinks- La Dispute

7/10. It's La Dispute, but I'm not a fan of the beat. As always, Jordan Dreyer is amazingly amazing.

Last Blues for Bloody Knuckles- La Dispute

10/10- captures their essence perfectly. Jordan's vocalization makes me shudder. Or that could be the fan blowing directly on me... no, it's Jordan.

I See Everything- La Dispute

11/10- very possibly my favorite song EVAR. Hard rock as a main dish, delicious lyrics, delectable guitar, savory vocals, and spoken word as a side. Delicious. Just delicious.

TURN IT UP TO 11!

Okay, that's way overused.

Damn these guys are good, and they are growing on me more and more the more I pay attention to them and their huge variety. This guy really, really does challenge himself vocally.

The lack of lyrics destroyed them for me. I liked the gentle strumming of the guitar, but post-hardcore is more my style. I will look into them and see if they're more entertaining in a more calm period in my life.

La Dispute- St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church Blues or some shit

10/10- A nice, seasoned lyrical amazingness. Hard rock as a main dish, with a prominent side of spoken word. Beginning guitar has me tapping away immediately, and the lyrics urge me to sing along. Strong ending, with good aftertaste.

Eh, I love instrumental music, because there is great instrumental music out there. For me it's not all about lyrics. Too many times vocals have actually ruined music for me, so yeah. And I rarely ever pay attention to lyrics in general. My favorite band speaks Icelandic, for example, so I have no idea what they are saying.

But like I said, they have a big variety. And unlike usual where there's a lot of variety within a certain genre (Of Monsters and Men), these guys have a freaking big variety throughout multiple genres. (That is if you were referring to what I posted)

This, this, and this for example, along with them having an even more mellow song then the one I posted, with a much more metal song right after it. It's honestly awesome in my opinion.

I admit, instrumental music can be good, but I pay very, very close attention to lyrics, so when there's a lack of them, it sort of makes it boring for me.

I can definitely help you with vocals though. There's still a lot of vocals I dig, in a variety of music. My signature song lyric line being one of my personal favorites at the moment, because it's all too appropriate.

I like the vocals and lyrics, but they're so damned depressing. Love it, just not as much as some.

Heh, I love depressing lyrics:P But then you look at lyrics like from Train's song "Drive By" and a lot of other songs....and my god the lyrics are just dumb. The rhyming in the "Drive By" song is so stupid and desperate for rhyming, it's pathetic. NOT ALL SONGS NEED RHYMING DAMNIT!

Sorry, went on a rant about one of the songs that's becoming one of the most irritating songs to me (Along with We Are Young).

God damn you Iceland and your music! I seriously think these guys music is so brilliant because they aren't affected by the modern commercialized crap of the music industry. They have SO many musical genius' that make original music in many different genre's.
