Monkeys 3660 and 3659 were jostled off the roof of Elsinore Palace due to the shock wave from Alastair tripping over a power cord.

Monkey 3656 was 3658's parent who failed to warn him about the dangers of not looking both ways before crossing the wormhole. She fell into depression and later committed suicide.

Monkey 3654 discovered he was deathly allergic to pop rocks while attempting the pop-rocks and soda challenge. It's hard to say really, whether it was anaphylactic shock or the ruptured stomach that did him in faster.

Monkey 3652 couldn't take seeing thousands of his friends die, and rigged a trapdoor, killing him and monkeys 3651-3642.

Monkeys 3651-3642 were not slain by the event that murdered 3652, but were in fact spontaneously translocated to random locations throughout the universe. Alas 3651 felt the sting of probability as his destination was approximately seven inches from the surface of the Sun.

Monkey 3644 got sad, very sad. But he found the perfect monkey, and stayed with them for years. They eventually mated and had Monkeys 3643 and 42. They lived a long time, and eventually, Monkey 3644 died at the ripe old age of 30. It was later found his mate was a robot and the children were just other young monkeys. His life was a cruel experiment.

Monkey 3643, as a part of the ongoing psychological experiment, developed a compulsion to lick power outlets.

Young Monkey 3641, born when his supposed uncle (44) was 29, learned how to fondle a fork. After viewing 3643 before their untimely demise, he decided that power outlet was for dinner for him, too.

Monkey 3637 ran out of Maze Runner references for his class break and went so insane he didn't eat until he thought of one. He died after a few days, seeing as he his college diet consisted mostly of ramen and breathmints.
