5079 was blown to pieces after some guy touched him. Apparently, the guy said "Bites the dust" in a Japanese accent afterwards.

Monkey 5071 Was the Fuel Handler of the Exact Rocket That Monkey 5072 was Onboard. Unfortunately, Monkey 5071 Accidentally Miscalculated the Fuel Load However, and the Rocket Ended Up Running Dry and Stalling On Take-off and Therefore was Pointed Straight At the Launchpad, Which Monkey 5071 was also on. His Last Words Were: "Was in der Welt..." Before the V2 Hit the Pad, Causing a Fireball and Explosion.

Monkey 5070 was on the fire crew that tried to save Monkey 5072 and Monkey 5071 from the launch-pad fire - Nazi Monkeys! He tripped over a hose and was trampled by the other Nazi Monkeys running away from the fire.

Monkey 5066 tried bloodletting.

People tend to assume that Entrance of the Gladiators by Julius Fučík is what that ever so famous circus clown theme is. And in a way, it is. Nobody would ever argue with you on this fact.

However, if you want to be an unlikable, pedantic jerk, the song actually known to be circus music would be a version composed for American woodwind bands (and later transcribed for fairground organs) titled Thunder and Blazes, published by Louis-Philippe Laurendeau.

Of course, this information is of absolutely no consequence to anyone.

Monkey 5062 had severely infected wounds on their arm, and needed to have it amputated. It wasn't.

Monkey 5056, the replacement, was plagued by the guilt of all his lies. He managed to keep up the act for 3 years before he committed suicide. Monkey 5057's family found a note he had left confessing everything he did, and they died of shock.
