The Oh Hellos - Soldier, Poet, King.

I love the first half of the song. The second half, well... I mean it is still okay, but not my taste.

SewersIvt - inpeace

This composition is performed in the genre of modern breakcore, SewersIvt (now Cynthoni). It is one of the most popular and recognizable compositions of this musical artist. In general, it combines both calm tempo - melody, and aggressive amen-break, characteristic of this style. The fact is that the most vivid emotions come from the fusion of such basic and strongest emotions as anger and sadness. This will create a calming effect, which, of course, this genre possesses.

One of the epic remixes of legendary songs, hmmm, interesting.

If you are in doubt, you can always use any checker on the Internet ;) I use a translator for writing because my level of English does not allow me to write texts as well as in my native language - Russian. Of course, the disadvantage of the English language is that it has few epithets and it is impossible to accurately convey emotion, thought, as in Russian, highlighting and emphasizing.

Xxtarlit - Fleeting Frozen Heart

In general, this is one of my first songs when I got acquainted with the breakcore subgenre of the electronic music genre, as well as one of my favorite and most listened to compositions. This is the most famous musical composition of this artist, at least this artist is underestimated and did not get the same fame as, for example: Sewersltv, Tokyopill and others. So, this song has the character of a very calm, rhythmic ambient and low-key amen break. Also a vocaloid was used - the voice of a girl who just hums and it became a part of the main melody.

Meghan Trainor, T-Pain - Been Like This.

This is possibly the very first time where I found a song on a radio, THEN immediately download it on my computer. I typically Shazam songs only to not look at them anymore. This one, yeah it's good.

Not a fan of the lyrics. I am not a prude, but jeez it's almost always about it. The chorus and the beats are good.
