An unamused policeman takes your stereo equipment and smashes it on the ground.

Hacking into a bank's computer system and stealing trivial amounts from thousands of accounts.

This nation reflects some of my RL views, but with everything taken to the extreme.

If it is murder, it is murder, and manslaughter is manslaughter and is treated as such. Only if it is an unintended consequence of a necessary use of force can police officers be exonerated.
Restriction: the targeted killing of people who would in turn kill or seriously injure others is of course permitted.

Defiling the national flag (probably not new?).

High Lord Teilga not being a born nobility is entitled to pursue legal action which at worse will obligate the offender to a N$500 fine and will allow Teilga to challenge them to a duel on any terms that both sides shall agree on. A chess or a math duel is likely because Teilga is permanently paralyzed and requires extensive life support.

This practice was popular in the previous 3rd republic as the previous government's central bank undervalued our currency, meaning that you will lose money if you declare the money to official channels. Our current central bank policies ensures stability to be the main priority and this practice is BANNED and private exchanges ceases to exist. 7 years in prison with fines double that of the money brought

If you mean 'assassination', then life imprisonment to the assassin and/or accomplices. If you mean meeting someone in private or assigning them, not much. If another term, edit and I'll try editing mine.

If your check bounces, that's not fraud, so its a civil matter. If you don't pay, we sue you. Only a crime to for instance put false figures on your tax return.

Based on the "Only Yes is Yes" law (similar to the one on Spain), you could either get fired, get fined and have a restraining order against you, or get prison, depending on how serious it is.

Tricking your neighbors into robbing you, then taking them to the cops.

How exactly do you even get to trick someone into robbing somebody else? Even more so... how do you trick someone into robbing... YOU?! Anyway... A hefty fine and probably a restraining order for falsely pushing criminal evidence on someone.
