"Wonder, how was her trial? Last time I met her during peace talks, I desperately tried to conclude with any sort of peace, included her being sent to the international court to be judged if she committed warcrimes or not. While I don't believe, that she is the one being guilty, some people might have different opinion. I still find her to be a potential ally, even if I disagree with her anti-gun policy. She believes, that right to bear arms is illogical. I frankly can't understand that, due to my cultural upbringing, cuz we believe, that only through universal ability to arm themselves, the people can defend their lives and freedom from any tyranny, that could come from outside or within. We have suffered prolonged enslavement and genocide and wanna make sure, that the next assholes, who try to occupy us gonna be pumped full of lead.

Oh, and since she is also a proponent of nuclear energy, I think, that she might like our schematics of safer reactors. Yeah, while we are happy-go-lucky, chaotic dudes, we take nuclear reactor safety extremely serious, cuz we don't wanna radioactive shit leak all over our resorts and lands. Plus, we are building them with possible war being taken in account. With our recklessness and other traits in mind, we designed reactors, that wouldn't go Chernobyl even if some drunk or high dude screws something up. I think, that if I share the schematics of our reactors, she could find some curious ideas there. Better to spread reactor safety system data, cuz it'll only benefit the world and there is no harm in this."-Overboss Liam Navarro

However, what I do not find commendable is his aggressive interventionist policy and is a primary reason as to why I have developed negative sentiments regarding the United States. I do not appreciate the meddling of Westerners in the affairs of other states, in the name of so called "democracy and freedom". Such pursuits have always ended in failure and resulted in nothing but the suffering of innocent people. Overall, I agree and appreciate his internal economic policies but I am staunchly against his interventionism"

Sitz, defacto leader of expeditionary team "Kite Flyers"

Greetings Mr Sultan. You have a nice hat. As I can see from your personal info, you became sultan in 2056, which is like 29 years in the future from my perspective. You were born in the Valley of Death. Cool name. Later in your life, your uncle invited you to come over to... Hyperbad? Hydradad?... Hyderabad. Yes. Hyderabad. So your uncle brought you to Hyderabad. When you arrived there, you at first were unfamiliar with everyone. But as time went on, you started getting acclimated to the environment. But you still missed your mother. You went on a trip back to your homecountry of Yemen to find her, but she unfortunately left. You were sad, but luckily, it won't stay bad. The Sultan introduced you to a friend which makes stuff better. How wholesome. Its good to have a friend.

When you became sultan, you thought that the factions in the government and political parties were dividing the nation. So you did what everyone would do... get rid of democracy and establishing authoritarian rule. It might say that there is not much opposition because of your "benevolence," but I wouldn't trust anyone with absolutist power, no matter how benevolent they are. Who takes over after you are gone? What if your heir isn't as "benevolent" as you are. This leads me to other questions about your nation. What about the free press? What about the right to protest? To me, this seems like a recipe for disaster.

OUR GREATEST DEAR LEADER FEEKFACE believes it wouldn't hurt to rule with more of an iron fist. Our intelligence has noticed that your nation is only providing 15% of the national budget towards Defense, not to mention nearly half goes to useless things like Healthcare, Education, and Environment. The rumor that "freedom" and "democracy" is what guides a nation to success is untrue when word of bullet works just as well. Ultimately, it matters not how happy your nation's people are, but simply the economic and military strength of your nation. Fortunately I can say that, in comparison, your United Nations Command leaves our GREATEST FEEKING ARMY a lot to be desired.

[1] "Leira Owrsheisch" is perhaps the closest orthographic translation of "Leira Ortiz" in Old Feyris linguistic convention, no matter how wonky it sounds

[2] "Byishi" represents a difficult-to-translate Feyris convention of gender representing femininity, but it is closely translated to "woman", "girl" or even "faerie girl"

[3] "Shyeifyu" is a family relation that often comes in Late Daschime family conventions, but can also mean "comrade", "sister", "wife" or "girlfriend" (romantic/sexual partner). The meaning depends on the exact context.

[4] "Boschiren" means "land", "tribe", "country", "realm"

[5] "Heyang" is theorized to refer to hypothetical nomadic groups living adjacent to the Late Daschime Culture that were in a hostile state against them

Off the bat Her origin story isnt exactly something I haven't seen before, plenty of people end up somewhat like her with origin stories like these. Also, I don't think she is human, like at all. Sure, it may be obvious to certain people, but I thought we were dealing with a Human until I got to the very bottom.

I doubt we will deal with her anytime soon, but if we do, I am probably going to send a female diplomat rather than a male. It just seems like a safer thing to do."

"I remember an aphorism from long ago that I believe suits this man's rulership, and it went something like this: 'The road to hell is full of good intentions'. The meaning of that phrase can be interpreted in this way: regardless of how good the actor's intentions are, sometimes the actions that are made do lead to unintended consequences. But, of course, I don't intend to overlook years of genocide under his rule. His arrogance and paranoia, and I suppose, vanity, are his worst aspects--and though noble was his campaign to quash rebels and bring about great social change in the lands he governs, the road he has walked is full of well-meaning intentions drowning in the blood of 30 million people including his subjects. He earns no favour from me."

"Emperor Nemo is a man that I can respect. He is a strong leader and has the ability to act when action is needed. In fact, i'd say that we have a lot in common and many of our policies are simply parallels to fit the requirements of our respective cultures. He sought to establish full authority for himself in the government with complete control of state functions, he seeks to strengthen his nation's military and unite all his people. I have also taken similar steps and I have achieved success. Sometimes a strong hand is required in order to bring people together and get things done fast and effectively, something our democratic friends fail to understand"

[1] "Hyorun of the Heyang" is an ad-hoc term that does not have any equivalent in Late Daschire political conventions. "Hyorun" is a modern translation and means the root word of "Princess", while "Heyang" refers to hypothetical nomadic groups in Late Daschire Culture and is synonymous with "foreigner", "barbarian". Directly translated, it means "Ruler/Leader of the Foreigners/Barbarians".

[2] "Daughter of Shiori" is a title that commonly refers to the Chieftess i.e to herself.

[3] "horusen-horunyen" is a modern word and is anachronistic in this context, but can be taken to refer to "government", "politics".

[4] "Boschiren" means "land", "country", "people", "tribe", "realm".

[5] In modern language, she is telling that there is no division between politics and religion i.e no separation of church and state.

[6] This is mangled philosophical language speak, but is referring to an anachronistic arcane Feyris philosophy of "ridown-furosen-jae" referring to a collective consciousness. Ryeischbyi seems to be trying to understand politics in this context.

[7] "Weibschu" is a system of gift economy that dominated the economy of Late Daschire Culture similar to "potlatch" of Pacific Northwest Tribes. Once again, Ryeischbyi trying to understand economy in this context.

[7] "byishyi" refers to a complex Feyris gender convention of femininity that is hard to understand, but is more often translated as "girl", "woman", or "faerie girl".

[9], [10] This is a bit NSFW so better left untranslated. "chikem" and "shyifum" refers to penis and vagina. All Feyris people are all girls. The best way translating this is "Why do you not allow two people to marry each other just because they have the same genitals", which comes across as a crude expression.

BN: Either react to Chieftess Ryeischbyi, if you want to react to a PT leader or to High Princess Ryeisse Schyi Yuri instead if you want to react to an MT Communist leader.

OUR GREATEST DEAR LEADER FEËKFACE believes it wouldn't hurt for High Princess Ryeisse Schyi Yuri to rule with more of an iron fist. Our intelligence has noticed that your nation is only providing a paltry 12% of the national budget towards Defense, not to mention nearly a third of the budget goes to useless things like Healthcare, Education, and Environment. I also scorn the fact that you are in the Communist Bloc, as well as the fact that your nation's Welfare is in the top 5%. Everyone knows that communism breeds laziness and welfare does nothing but encourage people to mooch off the government and not become a Corporate Servant. Finally, OUR GREATEST DEAR LEADER FEËKTACE's officials have noted your nation's Cheerfulness is top 10%. Ultimately, it matters not how happy your nation's people are, but simply the economic and military strength of your nation. If there is anything positive to say about Feyrshire, it is that enforcing conscription, using WMDs, and banning immigration is all pretty based.

Oh dear, what a leader! Well actually I must say I like him. He has great priorities and he gets things done. I would not support everything he does or says but over all he is a great leader and his people are proud to serve him.
