Depends.

If on the Left? Nothing happens.

If on Right? DEATH.

If Center? 15-30 Years depending on how long the people were held hostage and how many.

I guess Treason?

No longer Christmas, back to depression...

Depends, if it's urban area with business offices death be skin peeling, yes that actually happens here if the crime is bad enough. If it's suburban area they will receive a life sentence in prison and will receive all the debt of the owners of the houses they burned down. If it's the area that was burned down was rural they will receive a 5000 dollar fine and slap to the face.

Insurance fraud?

Generally a fine relative to both the insurance owed and the wages of the criminal. If the fraud causes injury or stress the relevant penalties are also given.

Not a crime, kind of. Selling or importing cocaine is a crime and so you'd be asked where you got it, but using it is technically legal. However, if you don't dob in your dealer then police will assume you're supplying it and so you could potentially face 10-25 years for supply.

Shoplifting?

Depends, if is a small amount and does not violate quarantine law then no punishment. Otherwise depends on the amount and/or the probable damage.
