or just let it painfully die by lack of supply 😊

75 whole years after the world is saved from the Darker Lord in the realm of Miitopia, it has fallen into chaos. New Lumos plans to invade the mainland continent, Karkaton is in a brutal civil war, and things are not going well for the Realm of the Fey. Who will reign supreme in these dire times?

Some of the things rl militaries does would probs baffle these people. Like when Israel dispensed with the bow gunner and that M1919 on their Shermans.

i love seeing people like that. i once had a guy from finland roleplaying as Germany and i was Russia. this was a 19th century rp and i spent the next 2 hours giggling my bottom off cuz he was researching nukes and bombing me and stuff. this happened on a roleplay discord, but can most likely apply to NS forum roleplaying too. Most of the people that have a powertrip are either kids or people that do not care to research something before writing

Also every nation having nuclear powered supercarriers is kind of silly. IRL only the US and France have nuclear powered carriers, and only the US operates more than one. Most countries that have carriers just have amphibious assault ships that can launch VTOL aircraft and helicopters. Hell, it would be far less silly if people who insisted on having multiple supercarriers started wanking around with multiple Queen Elizabeth class carriers because at least they're not nuclear and any country that wants one could probably afford it as a result.

I mean hyper-realism isn't really a thing when you have intergalactic

I exclusively do MT and might dabble in PT if a reasonable opportunity for it comes up so none of that is really a thing for me.

And on the matter of superpower nuke-armed NS nations as common as beach sand, it's extremely limiting to have your main be a third world nation if your intention is to RP. Even a powerful PT empire has trouble finding co-RPers in equal footing here.

Even being a MT regional power with some expeditionary warfare capability is tough to find people to RP with. You're still not strong enough to fight global superpowers that would make the US blush and don't have millions of people to send to their death over some dumb civil war. But this has always been the issue on NS.

^This all the way.

Plus nobody will want to poke a small backwater country with a stick regardless of context. Be it an international incident, a revolution, a war, trade, diplomatic meet-n-greet... So on.

Even though a civil war in such a country could easily be spun up into a proxy war by others, which is fun, but somehow it doesn't get the same amount of attention as Texk's backwards posts or modern/ft civil war no.95847319856 within a developed first world country, now with extra-similar sides with similar ideals!

NS at its finest, folks.

Even worse when they don't even have that many dispatches or fact books to draw from, and what few they do have are poorly formatted and full of spelling errors and conflicting information.

JOINUSJOINUSJOINUS

I do like me some FT, especially because you get to dunk on every single other nation in military threads. Be careful with that however, because it's only fun if it's exceedingly detailed with some sorta-credible-looking science behind it. Cool visuals help too.

Oh, even worse than that, the dude who asked for the detailed ending only had one factbook and it detailed his nation's "language," which was just a Daedric-style alphabet swap of English with the most random symbols it seems like he could find

Through a haze of green and white fog and the sloshing of the Pacific Ocean on the sides of your wooden sailboat, you lay eyes on a mystical ooc island full of creatures living in a medieval society in harmony with both nature and progress formed a millennium ago and kept moving forward by new human residents every couple years. That doesn't mean I'm not being ditched. Though I will say I'm pretty sure now that I've re-read what I wrote I meant for this to be a coastal continental nation, however the island is easier to fit into Earth's geography...

That's why I really like creating a nation in a fictional world. Yes, you have to do more work, but you can be as creative as you wish and don't have to base your world off of an existing foundation.
