High Princess Ryeisse Schyi Yuri
leaked Princess Ryeisse's letter to Yurika Aenschein

"I can't honestly hide my slight disappointment with the ascendancy of Waldemar Rochester over the President of Crossoveria Hamad bin Ahmad Al Meskin. Hamad bin Ahmad was our guy, he was the one who we trusted, and most of all owes an immense debt over us, even if we could not exactly predict 100% all of his actions and control him. We poured a lot of money.. not necessarily a lot, but a sizable amount!, for the Theocratic Party, as per a hilarious tradition of HPI (Hall of Proletarian Internationalism). Our interference was so an open secret that it was an open book to all! And we did this interference with the support of friendly countries and "people's democracies" ("Princess Ryeisse wiggles her two fingers over the term).

Now Yurika-chan, you messed up here because the political situation in Crossoveria has not been clear to us. Supreme Leader Waldemar Rochester is the real one in charge, not Hamad bin Ahmad! Our investment, seemed to not have pay off so much as expected. But it was worth it! Crossover had become a weak link in imperialism again! A struggle against American imperialism had developed! The position of the international proletariat is made stronger! This African guy really can do something good for a while, but not too big, the question is how much, and for long?"

"I agree with this catgirl's appearance. Policies.. not so much. Her Marxist orthodoxy is too pushy, workers ain't becomin' free, workers instead get another exploiter, who pretends, that he cares for them, while removing their rights and making up five year plans, which are based on leader's pipe dreams and not even remotely grounded in reality, so folks have to fake the reports like... A pig on a farm brought three piglets... not enough. Farmer said it's five piglets. His director said in reports, it's seven. And the higher it goes the more of them there are. Soon, leader gets report, that farm pig gave birth to twenty piglets. Or... other shit can happen, such as "Ryazan miracle", or perhaps killin' all the damn sparrows and then havin' to buy them from other countries, cuz insects munched the harvest.

It's not that she is entirely bad... After all, she and her vision got some good points too. And we have a mutual enemy. Fascism. Perhaps, the only way I see us cooperating, is in a fight against fascist nation. Otherwise, I don't think we gonna see eye to eye. We value freedom too much to be either communist or capitalist, we are basically in the center economically. But to her, that's another brand of capitalism. And of course freedom for the people is not something she loves..." -Overboss Liam Navarro for a little while now but I've never really been all too confident enough to bring myself to interact with it. I would say less because I was afraid it was some kind of malware but more because of my own mind. Really, I have been working on it, but at the end of the day I am still not as confident in myself and my surroundings as I probably should be.

But, I'll keep quiet on that. I doubt this site would be all too pleased to hear someone such as a Monarch complain about her shortcomings, that I understand. That's what brought me here, though. Alongside that strange chatroom, this place might be a nice way to take up some time and distract myself from all the things that I have to contend with otherwise.

What's this place asking? Of course my thoughts are on the "leader" above me. Well, maybe it's not all just leaders, how many of them can be out there that use this place regularly? And who's above me? President Francine, Izeddy, Engelford, well it's nice to meet you to start off with. I'm sorry if this review, opinion that I will provide might not be up to too great of a standard; it is my first time after all, but I will try to get out something substantial.

So, your right honorable, you are President of... Classroom 3-B?.. I would ask if that is something along the lines of Student President which some schools have but actually from what I am reading, you and your classmates seem to treat yourselves as a nation of peoples. Well, then... forgive me, rather... Most likely unknowing rudeness, but that's really a concept I would never have expected to see. We had a situation in Sociology Class once back when I was studying it in College in 2012 where the professor created a scenario of a corrupt dictatorship of sorts within the classroom which we were either supposed to try and make do within or overthrow in revolution. I must admit, I was one just to try and fit in as I could but I know some of my fellow classmates did try to start a revolution against the professor staging himself as corrupt dictator, but let's just say it didn't get anywhere.

Now this situation seems a lot like that, but you are all taking it very seriously, to the point of having different small cliques like your own "Young Proletariat" group and the others that follow your classmates and... Well, I suppose friends Francine and Jojo whom both have different ideologies and beliefs about how to manage the classroom. And if I'm reading it correctly, it also seems like this has been going on for quite some time now, to the point where the classroom is "blockaded", figuratively of course from the rest of Paul Bunyan Upper School with all of you declaring independence from the school and the student council. So, either this is a very elaborate sociological experiment, or there is something else going on that I can't quite wrap my head around, I am sorry to say.

So, if you don't mind, maybe I can move on from that and talk about you a bit more personally, President? And of course your relationship to the Classroom, specifically Jojo and Ms. Anderson? Well, you seem to be in a unique and no doubt stressful position of being in between both the ruthless Francine and the more compassionate but perhaps... Least effective Jojo? I wouldn't say you are like "a mix of them" because it never is that simple, but at least in terms of position you are there within both of them. You helped both gain prominence in the Classroom's revolution but because of differing viewpoints you kind of regret that.

Ah, and here's the important part. You three were once good friends, right? And even through the revolution - which of course comes with instability - the three of you despite all differences still hold a semblance of that. Well, lest I sound too much like Jojo, but I think being the middle ground between your two once-friends, you might be in the best position to mend the three of your relationships back together and maybe along with that unite the classroom all that better. For the sake of unity against the rest of the corruptive elements of the School, of course.

Onto some more light-hearted stuff, you describe yourself as a geek and a video game speedrunner, hrm? You know, I have watched a few speedruns of more popular games myself and they kind of have an art of their own, so I actually respect that. I really have never attempted that myself, the closest I really got to doing that was recently trying to rush to defeat Calamity Ganon in Breath of the Wild, but even that probably does not compare. So, I encourage your future speedrun of Bowser's Fury, especially if it brings you enjoyment along the way.

So all in all, I think I definitely hold some respect for you, mister President. I know, says the inherited Monarch but it's true. I do hope your revolution continues and that maybe, just maybe you, your two friends and the Classroom can find unity and friendship in the near future.

Ilyina Romanova; the Tsarina of Alaska

"Honestly, coming here took a bit of effort to convince myself doing, and reviewing and giving my opinion on another individual so soon after my first has exacerbated that, not to offend you personally, Liam. For one, I still have young Nicholas, my eight year old brother and mother to look after let alone my position as Constitutional Monarch. And secondly, I would not describe myself as the most confident person, so doing this honestly feels kind of forced to me

But, I suppose I've committed now, haven't I? Let's see about you, mister Liam Navarro. From what I have seen, the society you grew up in is one that is... Well, not something I'd really expect at all from anywhere on Earth, at least... The one I'm present on. You brand yourself as moralistically inclined raiders toppling corrupt and dictatorial regimes and fighting Fascism with the loot you all plunder just being an extra reward to that. I'd personally say that the whole idea is a little hypocritical; that the Sky Reavers claim to be on the good side of morality whilst getting a lot of innocents caught in the crossfire of their actions and whilst butchering "Fascists" they will occasionally take the life of someone who did no wrong, but I think I'll digress for now. Because for you, mr Navarro - an interesting surname by the way because I believe it's also the name of a location in that Fallout Franchise, right? - compared to the Reavers' you actually led a pretty stable and relatively normal life, having a laid-back childhood followed by successful education. My childhood was kind of similar actually. My primary education came from private tutors instead of primary school and the first School I entered was when I was 11, which was a High School, one that was also both a Woman's only academy and a boarding school. I guess we dealt with that a bit differently though. Back even then, though you were apparently laid-back you were also quite extroverted and even a "ladies' man" from what I am reading. I just kept quiet and to myself for the most part, except for when it came to Physical Education. I only really have one true friend from that part of my life, Sophia.

So, you would continue to college and eventually university where you took a degree in Arts? For me, I only had it in me to pursue one Master's Degree; that same year... Well, the previous Tsar disappeared and was... Well, presumed dead, so I really did not have much of a capacity to do much else. If you're curious, I continued

Sociology from college - which both college and university were in the same campus - and came out with a Master's Degree at the end of it.

I see the overall raider-like culture of the Sky Reavers would be intertwined eventually with you though, Liam. Honestly, these parts went a little over my head at times but if I am reading right, you lost your left arm - my apologies - and got it replaced by prosthetics a month or two later to a "freak accident" and had participated in what I presume to be a fair few combat encounters yourself, eventually getting the nickname of "three barrels" due to your shotgun. Also, you were and apparently still are a little promiscuous? Well, I can't judge too hard, even if I am the "Wait until marriage" kind of person due to my religious beliefs.

I might be skipping a bit, my apologies if I am but eventually you'd be told during some sort of bar crawl that you would challenge the previous "Overboss" to a series of challenges ending in a non-lethal duel between the two of you, and to the surprise of everyone; even you, you prevailed and became the next Overboss yourself, whilst Shawn would just become minster of defense, or whatever the equivalent is in your society. From there, you'd show a little more tact in the management of the Reavers than Shawn did, and with your interest in arts you put in place the "Enthorean Rebirth" to... Well, revive the culture of that city. I honestly can't speak much for policy, I never was good at doing that even now, and today I just say "I am a mixture of Green, Labour and Conservative" and leave it at that, so don't mind me if I can't find too much to say.

I'll end here. I am getting a little tired and mother no doubt needs to be seen to soon. But I do actually think rather highly of you, Liam, maybe if I have to ignore a bit of your more raider-like lifestyle to come to that conclusion. I see you as a normal person thrust into leadership and before that, warfare all of a sudden and managed to come out on top for both of those things, which is very respectable and perhaps even a little... Terrifying as well, that you had such great capability that against the odds you did all that. I guess what I am saying is; your enemies have quite a bit to fear, hmm? Either way, I'll say goodbye for now. It's been nice talking about you, Liam"

Heya BN![*1] Just to let you know, if you scroll over the Tsarina's name up above underneath her image you'll find yourself hovering over a link to her Biography!

When you get onto responding yourself, please do try to make something that's more than a sentence or a line. I know I make giant posts myself, but that's not at all what I'm expecting back, just something like a paragraph or two that shows that YC[*2] has read about and... Well, is actually addressing and giving an opinion on Ilyina.

But I'm sure I didn't need to tell you that anyway. Have fun!

Царство Аляски, or the Russian Empire lives on in it's old colony, Alaska after the conclusion of the Russian Revolution of 1917. Standing with it's allies against the Moscow Accord of Russia and it's alliance members, nevertheless world tensions dwindle and the people of Alaska grow ever more desensitised with the conservative status quo, and their insistence on clinging to a now redundant past.

"Hypocrites are perhaps some of my favorite people. How blessed I feel then that this whole kingdom is full of them! Alas, it is the egotistical delusions of your people and the heresy movement they follow that I find the most fascinating. You, on the other hand, I find quite boring. I would imagine that to lead such a power capable of facing the upstart United States in battle would take a powerful and imposing figure, yet here you are a rather dull affair proving me wrong. From the struggles in poverty, to finding 'hope' in one of the hundreds of churches all claiming to have finally discovered the 'correct' path after everyone else miraculously happened to have been doing everything 'wrong' for the last 1800 years, to the feudalistic marrying-into-power. I've seen and heard it all before numerous times. Expanding education, championing women's rights, combating poverty - yes, it's all very inspiring. And yet still so dull! Who hasn't done such things before? I suppose it is the break from your peoples' xenophobic isolationism that I find the most fascinating. Perhaps opening up to the world around you will allow for more color in your drab, insular lives? One could only hope because at this point the only thing less interesting than this 'presidentess' is a Christian monastery, and not by much. My dear I mean this as a compliment: your kingdom is a blight upon the land. What a pity that it's leader cannot hold to that example."

Ohhh its you... I think we have spoken each other a few times. So you are the infamous Yunru Liang, the architect of the Foehn Paramilitary Regions. I see we share the same surname. Don't know if it is a coincidence, or that we are related or something. Maybe you are some kind of alternate universe version of the latter. My mother's niece has a name pretty similar to yours. She still lives in China, near the Pearl River.

Anyway, you've studied engineering and got invited for some super secret think-tank that develops weapons. I'm not familiar with engineering, I'm more of a physics gal. But then Yuri, the person you often call... a lot of things, tries to brainwash the entire world to create some kind of "utopia led by a single mind," which I'm pretty sure will lead to a very stable system that will last long after his death. Joking aside, you seem to have become the leader of these "Paramilitary Regions" simply by being at the wrong place, at the wrong time. Everyone could have become the leader of the FPR, but unfortunately, it was you. Because if I'm really honest, I don't really think that you are a good leader, and I'm not the only one. I've heard that a lot of your underlings call you a "screeching wench."

While I think that under any other circumstances you would have been a nice person, under these, you have done terrible things. I've heard what you have done to suspected brainwashed. While removing the brains (or at least the connection the brain has to the rest of the body) is an effective way to get rid of brainwashing, I don't think that the victim would be very happy with it. And since you see brainwashed everywhere, a lot of people are probably going to end up like this. This is obviously not a good way to run a nation... or NGO for that matter.

In my opinion, the best course of action is for you to step down, and have someone else be the leader. Someone who would be a bit more defensive and simply waits out until Yuri dies of old age and the problem solves itself. Unfortunately, you seem to have made the Paramilitary in such a way that its all centered around you, which means that your system isn't really that different from Yuri's. If I'm being honest, I don't really believe that your organization will last very long.

You are weak minded. Your wasted potential disappoints me, though simultaneously I am relieved by the lack of an unworthy competitor. Much more could have been done with your acquired power. Your organization has squandered it all on concepts such as "integration" and "community", with the exploration of the multiverse yielding only knowledge with not nearly enough territory to justify it.

The desire to explore and invent is good, it is always good, but it remains unproductive in your case. While yes, I agree that the FPR is lead by a fool, you are even less competent. Your goals are, at least. Attempts achieving them do not seem to be the problem, as progress is clear, yet the intentions themselves are not as opportunistic as they could and should be.

You and your motley band of Samaritans do not conquer, do not grow physically. It astounds me how little corruption and the like abounds within the ranks of your organization, which continues to chase a hopeless cause. It is reminiscent of my creator and his own ridiculous nation.

The multiverse is infinite. You do not have infinite resources. Instead of producing them exponentially, you stick to the little rock where your original people were born and a few other rocks here and there. As a result, you will not gain enough to know more before it is too late.

Obviously, the best course of action for us is to take advantage of you while we can, and have already begun infiltrating your organization with spies unaware they are working for us. Our spores will have spread throughout all carbon, nitrogen, phosphorus and silicon based gas breathing sentient life forms by the time this is read, and we will continue to leech off you for information. Do not be alarmed. Because you are still useful, we will yet cause you no harm for likely eons to come. The hosts will experience nothing to which they will take notice beyond a slightly longer exhale when breathing.

The universe you inhabit will be left free for now and your Earth somewhat protected. Continue to do your job, or perish. If you choose the latter, we will find a new source. Consider this a mercy.

In short, Mother is not mad, just disappointed. Mother will watch you until Mother approves.

Mother always knows best.

"What an interesting person. She is, probably insane. The 2 things that speak to me the most is her idea of freedom. Her beliefs of individual freedom can be respected, even us, a military government respect our freedoms of our country. However the part that bothers me, is the fact she thinks service is the only way to earn these rights. Sure we have our own military training program, but we don't send soldiers all to wars to earn their freedoms. She does have a smart foreign policy however. Overall, she is quite a crazy fellow, I am not sure how I feel about her. I think she is a bit too insane to lead I guess.."

"So, Sarah Anderson. I can definitely say that I like some stuff about her, like her role in the military. As you know, I was in the Army before I became Supreme Leader, so I would always show interest if other leaders have also served too. But Ms. Anderson is one of the most daring, decorated, and brave leaders I've ever heard from, and her military career is impressive, and is something that I will gladly laud her for. It's obvious that her skill and bravery in the military is immense. Apart from the military, she seems to be quite a simple woman, and sometimes, living simply can be great. She has two dogs, like me, and she likes to go fishing, which is popular among Crossoverians. Overall, she is simply a great leader. She is a brave and daring soldier while maintaining a simple life at home. For that, I commend her."

It is 1881, and America still dreams of its "manifest destiny" to rule the continent. The strange pilgrims claiming a kingdom in the Great Basin apparently have other ideas.

"I must say my initial impression of Presidentess Sleet is quite favorable. Her young nation and its young religion intrigue me; they cast aside much of the hypocrisy that has at times gripped Christianity with regards to the plight of the poor in favor of alleviating the burden of poverty, something that Sleet's own upbringing no doubt gives her a deep understanding of. Sleet in particular seems to be more than a century ahead of her time when it comes to the issue of marriage and romantic relationships. Overall, she is guiding the Basin down a positive spiritual path, one that contrasts greatly with how human states often misuse religion as a tool to oppress. I also find some parallels between her and myself in how she is seeking to move forward from the Basin's isolation from the wider world while still protecting its independence and culture, for example through the interview with an American journalist she has arranged. I am glad to have learned of her."

High Princess Ryeisse Schyi Yuri

"Delegate of peace and bringer of good, High Priestess Mai Chie! Long live the kitsunes of Ketorushima, beautiful and cute people, and nice and glorious tastes with beautiful women of fox ears and fox tails! High Priestess Mai Chie, you will be the leader of the Kitsunes and the Foxgirls forever! You are a beautiful girl! With long, lustrous, shiny blonde hair, and beautiful and cute fox tails and nine-fox tails - The spitting image of the fabled kitsune shikigami Ran Yakumo!

You have brought progress to your island of Ketorushima! A progressive kitsune! You have brought light, peace, cheerfulness and love, and has made the world, with the addition of your person - brighter and cheerful than before.

Comrade High Priestess Mai Chie, in our magical love, friendship, cuteness, romance, and camaraderie, we want to friendly and cheerfully tell the Foxgirls of Ketorushima that Ketorushima Island is a land that belongs to the Catgirls of Feyrisshire, for it is their home - the home of their mother and the home of their ancestors. The Faerie Goddess Ryumine Marmargaels, when she swam in the sea, stopped there and had made into her abode. Ketorushima - the island that she called "Fukkakyarahi Megumi Ryuminedyei" or the "Far North Cold Island of Ryumine" in the Feyris island, was her beloved cozy rest house and the place that she and her wife the Faerie-Goddess of the skies, weather and storms Aenwyn Ranscheid had had a honeymoon together.

This is why Ketorushima, just as it is a holy and sacred place for you the Kitsune Shrine Maidens of Gensekyo Ketorushima for it is a liminal place between the land of the spiritual and the mundane, the meeting place of ghosts and youkais - is also the holy and sacred island that Ryumine Marmargaels and her wife the Goddess Aenwyn Ranscheid had dwelt. It is a holy and sacred place to both the Kitsunes of Ketorushima, and the Catgirls - the people of Feyrisshire, and thus has long-standing historical link with the Feyris people.

Our fisher girls had been complaining of an addition to Feyrisshire's EEZ (exclusive economic zone) to the area, but Ketorushima's kitsunes have been stopping Feyris whaler and fishing fleets in the region, as well as we cannot build a missile base, a naval base and a military base in Ketorushima which we need, but fortunately we had learned that it was the holy dwelling place of Ryumine Mamargaels, our Goddess after all and thus it is both ours and yours!

We come in peace, and to consolidate our love, friendship and magical ties together, we send to you a once-in-a-lifetime offer!:

Once in a Lifetime Offer For You High Priestess Mai Chie

"Lets see who we have here: a demi-human-fox person? Interesting! While our country does have anthropomorphic animals that make up a good portion of the population, I've never heard or seen someone that has traits of both human and anthro qualities. So, she's been this 'High Priestess' leader for over 115 years? In addition, she was the high manager for 100 more years? That's more than I have been alive, and I doubt I can live that long! I usually find it surprising to find people who manage to live for hundreds of years and serve in positions for about a hundred years. These two factors along are what make her unique, but then there's the other stuff about her.

I feel me and Mai Chie share some things in common. There's her knowledge and interest in history, which is something I also enjoy. I like how she's especially knowledgeable about ancient history. I see that her knowledge and fascination in history is vast, especially in regards to her island's history. I feel the same way, as, when I was young, I was fascinated with Crossoverian history. Then there's how she spends her free time, which is what I also do at times, and is something that in my opinion are the best ways to spend your spare time.

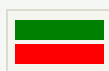

And then there is her leadership. I support her modernization of Ketorushima under her watch, plus the connection to the outside world. Her diplomatic outreach is also admirable, and I'm glad she is willing to meet with other human leaders, given that I, myself, am a human. Lastly, I agree with most of the things she's for and against. It's very clear she is a great world leader and, despite serving longer than I've been alive, she's managed to impress me with not only her leadership, but her knowledge about history. That is why I'm happy to learn about her, and again, she's a great leader for her country."
