One of The Chuck's most esteemed allies is Port Erber, with both countries being considered "brothers-in-arms" in the world stage.

New Spiedska has, almost consistently since around the Spanish-American war, been in a state of global powerhouse-hood, in spite of being a relatively small nation. Furthermore, it was a founding member of several international organizations, including but not limited to NATO, the United Nations, and the World Bank before their collapse during WW3. Furthermore, a New Spiedskan was one of the first people on the moon, being Neil Armstrong's companion on the two-person trip to the lunar surface.

All-in-all, New Spiedska has had a long and fruitful history, indicative of a high-achieving nation, and a hub of scientific prowess.

Their population has a major divergence in terms of chosen lifestyle between those who prefer to stay in one spot and those who like to roam. Even though there is no notable physiological distinction between the two, and there is movement back and forth, indications point to the groups being wholly separate polities.

Kinda odd.

Saba and the Philippine's geographies, while sharing much commonality however not forgetting that the two have their own distinctions; namely, that Saba (especially that of East Saba), as it lies within the Sunda Plate, is much more prone to earthquakes than the motherland.

New Makatska has a total of eight political parties. Notable ones are the Free Market Communist Coalition, which, as its name implies, supports the free markets while also supporting Marxism, the Wings of Liberty, a fascist party that is somehow allowed to survive in a communist country, and the Libertarian Party of Makatska, which supports right-libertarianism. The most popular party is the aforementioned Free Market Communist Union, counting with 1566 seats in the House of Peoples and 156 in the Senate.

Mental Enhancement Units are brain implants that are required for organic lifeforms that aren't smart enough for the needs of the Mainframe. When they are asleep, the MEUs are used for distributed computing, which results in dream-like side effects. If their efficiency score is negative, the MEUs automatically kill them.

That their government has some grudges against gender roles suggested by kawaii culture. I guess it goes like: "It's okay to have some fun, but only with each party's explicit consent and awareness of the suggested roles and their effects."

If I was wrong or not specific enough, you may TG me.

"It fared relatively well until some of the Christian priests started to oppose the usage of aircraft, subway and vaccination. Having nothing to back their words with apart from the Bible, Christians were perceived as a laughingstock by the people who have already reaped the fruits of science and were more demanding of proper proofs."

They must've had an extremely hard time cherry picking any verses that would seem to oppose usage of Aircraft, subways, or vaccinations.

What I've learned is that Christians in their nation were of the paranoid type.

We're about to discuss a highly controversial topic of religion. No offense intended.

Perhaps I was wrong about putting references to the Bible, but I guess it would go like this:

Aircraft — if we were meant to fly, we would have wings!

Subway — underground equates with Hell;

Vaccination — if the one's to die, so be it.

Further in TGs.
