The OP literally CTed in early March and yet all three of these posts, from this month, answered 'Yes' on the 'Do you want us to telegram you your score' question.

Don't think OP is gonna telegramshit.

I've seen a cliché of people attempting to bring PT atmosphere in a MT or even PMT RP's simply out of absence of PT roleplay in the age they are interested in. Like I've recently RP'ed a WW1-esque pilot confrontation in a MT war.

Talking about gravedigging, one thing I'll never understand is when someone replies to a long-dead thread in F&NI when an already active thread about that exact topic as the thread they gravedug is on page 1 of the board.

Like what's the point?

It reminds me of all those threads about the LGBT situation in your country. So many.

And who knows why even when this topic is posed in a general way, players will always say how much their leader himself is pro-LGBT or gay himself. And so will the whole nation. There will certainly be no extremist groups that hate homosexuals for some reason.

Outdated tactics in modern warfare, as we've seen in the American Civil War and WW1, will not go well

On the flip side I notice a lot more nations that are violently anti-LGBT just for the sake of being evil and operate under the assumption that nobody in their nation is gay.

That's how they make it exciting for the audience. If it was a real modern air to air engagement they would just fire missiles at each other from beyond visual range and probably wouldn't even know the exact type of aircraft they're firing at beyond it being a hostile radar contact. Close range dogfights might still happen but the chance of the pilots knowing the identity of the other in that situation are slim to none.

NS cliché: the straightforward and oversimplified solutions to extremely problematic issues e.g. global warming?, just reduce emissions and use clean energy; terrorism?, just bomb them until there are no more terrorists and such Reducing emissions by using green energy is a way to combat climate change. Although in my personal opinion nuclear is also a very viable option.

I'm just a simple man trying to make a country on the internet. And yes I do not use NS stats.

The Karevkan Soviet Union is an alternate history Russia whose history is mostly the same (although under a different name) until the Karevkan Revolution in 1917. More progressive in its policies than the IRL Soviet Union it has a market socialist economy and more civil rights and freedoms.

Nuclear IS green energy tho.

And the only alternative to "just reduce emissions and use clean energy" is geoengineering, which can't be maintained forever so you've gotta switch eventually. The questions are how to reduce emission and what clean energy to use, which don't have easy answers.

There will always be angry industrialists and other sects who don't want a change in general meaning that a full switch to clean energy would be pretty much next to impossible without causing a lot of dissent

I'm a firm believer that nuclear energy is the best choice. Wind and solar energy aren't stable nor powerful enough and hydroelectric energy negatively impacts habitats. Nuclear waste is manageable (just bury it in the Mojave or the Sahara) and if elements like thorium or even americum (which was successfully used to generate electricity in the UK 2 years ago) are used instead of elements like uranium then it's also much less likely to meltdown and be transformed into nuclear weapons.

Normies: renewable energy including nuclear is the solution to global warming.

Based: the above is true, but overconsumption due to the world getting richer is the root cause that also causes various problems outside of climate change, so the solution is a depopulation by a certain percentage.

Ascended: the above is true, but you're also a misanthropic lunatic who see the lower class as a burden, and uses environmental issues and a big list of other stuff to justify the selective genocide.

Do 'nations that have no concept of realistic military numbers' still exist? I'm talking nations that are supposed to be MT on Earth (or an Earth-like world) that are like 'Our total population is 30 million and 10% of our population serves in the military!'
