I really like it, too. It's got a great oriental feel to it. This is the original.

I really don't think I'd like Dir En Grey as much if they were just a metal band. The crazy vocals really make the band more awesome. All my favorite songs seem to be the ones with the craziest vocals.

My sentiments exactly. My favorite parts of their songs are the ones with the insane vocal sounds.

Kyo goes fucking insane sometimes, and it's always so utterly amazing. He's actually inspired me to learn how to increase my screaming range. I can actually shriek pretty decently; my growling and screaming need a little more control, though. The other members sometimes have their moments, too, but they're quite brief.

Dir En Grey - Agitated Screams of Maggots \(Unplugged\)

Usually their unplugged versions sound really melodic and soothing, so I was wondering how the hell they would be able to pull that off with this song. It's insane.

I bet your growling, screaming, and shrieking are leagues better than my attempts at singing along to Dir En Grey....

And listening to all of those now.

By saying that, you made me click on all those links and listen to them all at the same time. Wow. That was kinda awesome.

All of that was great, in a completely insane way. I really do think Kyo would do great doing some voice work for a video game or something. Like how Mike Patton does the sounds for the infected in Left 4 Dead, he'd be great for something like that in a video game.

Dir En Grey-The Blossoming Beelzebub.

I've always thought that, too. If Patton can make a great zombie, so could Kyo.

dat som en gang var, burzum

that opening riff is so fucking vicious, and those drums, holy crap someone needs to get rid of the keyboards!!!

we, unlike the bourgeoisie, have nothing to lose and therefore our expression will be the only honest one, our words will be the only challenging ones and our art will be the one revolutionary expression. We need new noise and new voices and new canvases to become something more than the last poets of a useless generation.
