Nation - Ignis States
Leader - Zen Aigystos Kaiser

"I have been meaning to put a cover on Zen for quite some time. It is always nice to see that there are others of curious origins that have access throughout the Omniverse, there is usually a lot that which we can share with one another. What strikes me the most positive about Zen is that he is one of those that cares for the environment, which is shown with his structuring of when he once ruled as emperor. his view on equality is also admirable, and would definitely sit well among those who do not care for gender when it comes to loving one another. there is one thing however that is troubling, and that is his desire for total domination over reality. that is something that no one should achieve, there is no pure mind that would ever use it the right way no matter what anyone would believe. I am of the void, but I am merely just one of the many entities within who are dedicated to keeping all in balance, none of us can control it on an individual level, nor do we wish to. I will not stop him trying to master the void himself, but total control is impossible, no matter what he believes. as for being against races that aren't human or Ignasae, that is also saddening to see. there are many races out there in the multiverse that deserve equal treatment... despite all this, I do not hold anything against him. I am happy to know more of him and work together in the future. I already have positive views with Ignis, so relations should be somewhat easier"

But enough of that. I respect her neutral ways, she seems to be a pacifist but has made it clear she can back her words up with action if needed. After all I've heard of the power she holds, her weapon is elegant, functioning

"As our dearest and most beloved leader is currently too inebriated to be seeing anyone at the moment, let alone deal with such lesser beings, I will be responding in her stead for the time being.

Oh yes, this man who our infinitely wise leader most famously described as tiny and insignificant. His head must be completely filled with air, because he knows nothing about what is necessary for a stable and efficient rule. Clearly has an insufficient number of concentration camps. While his military service is admirable, he should never been allowed to rise to this position. Clearly, this is a sign of a fault within their system of governance, further proof that only the glorious and most excellent Supreme Ruler of All Reality can have a perfect form of government. And finally, what is this nonsense about makeshift weapons? Why did you not have your sidearm at all times? That is most improper for military personnel. You must have your sidearm on you at all times, at minimum, in case it falls upon you to defend your government. What kind of child doesn't carry at least a laser pistol to protect their country, and thus has to resort to making their own weapons? How improper."

The Yonacarians accomplish nothing of value in their conquests; they don't grow their culture, they merely expand their territory. My opinion of Kaloru and her ilk? I don't like them, and it would delight me greatly if they were destroyed.

I assume, that he extensively utilized data and resources from Big MT.

Saturnite alloy was used for colony ship hull or something, then, Sierra Madre vending machines for resources, and of course as far as I remember, Repconn was merged with RobCo before the war. Very convenient for accessing their data and such. Which means, that ol' House probably had the idea of space exploration before the war, or... maybe he thought, that this would be necessary for long term goals after apocalypse. Either way, very clever, House." -Overboss Shawn Bjornson Curse? to be at least mildly intimidating But if I'm reading this right then I am to understand that it was all essentially a mistake, correct? Your great kingdom is the consequence of an accident. I... I know how that feels. Neither of us were meant to be where we are, I suppose. And despite everything that's happened to you you do not seem particularly dishonourable- that, at least, is admirable. One willing to fight when pressed, one who respects those close to him, one with actual ideals- you have taken it all much better than I would. Know, then, that I give you at least some degree of respect. Though I doubt one as esteemed as you among your people cares about what one such as I thinks."

Many rulers here at least mention one leader that they respect as a fair warrior. And I can see that in her soul, yes. I've mentioned it before but as she fights alongside her people they must hold high value and high views of her to present such bravery.

I know not of her view of me, but I am curious. Im sure she fears me and our land just as others do, sure. But I do intend on showing the multiverse that what they see isn't exactly the truth, there's a lot of misconceptions about Low blood after all."-Luden

"The Dominion is a being which we appreciate deeply. In a world of degenerates, liberals, and republicans the Liagolas has realized that the only way for a people to remain coherent is for all to become one with the state and thus each other. If we are to be completely honest we are slightly jealous that an organic was able to create what we have sought to create with their primitive technology, but we are certain that the Octavian System will be able to replicate the results of the Dominion and improve them tenfold. Our assessment of the Dominion is that we have observed the apex of organic civilization, it could be improved with assimilation and the like but our observations reveal an ideal civilization."

The Statement on Amaki

"It has been a long time since we have met another one from those humanimals (or furies, whatever), but here is Amaki from Albali. It seems that those so called "Ausari" evolved from canines or other related animals, but she also has several other things which are weird for several of our party's members - pansexual? Intersex gynomorph? We had to google those terms, yet some of us still didn't fully understand what it was all about. Anyways, she seems to have had a successful military service, especially when judging by all of the military awards she has received, and she is a strongman when it comes to ruling over her lands - sounds pretty good already. Now, let's look at other things."

"Huh, she is a member of one of the oldest noble families which are still surviving? Looks that Amaki indeed has won the lottery in there - she could have also been born to a working-class family, and be either one of the nameless victims who perished in the conflict, or be a grunt who is yelled at by their superiors. Either way, her reaction to Valbe's coup was certainly unusual, as she seems to have accepted and even liked the fact that the power of noble families was removed and a road for more meritocratic society was paved, because a lot of noble-borns get incredibly salty about such revolutions which affected them and their family personally, and usually go on rants filled with emotion and little logic. Either way, it sucks that some people still think that you gained a place in university because of your name and a noble family which no longer had the amount of influence it held before the revolution, and they don't even take in account your gains and skills. There is a lot we could discuss about her military career and deployments, but let's move to Roulons instead - while we usually are more in favor of isolationism and national sovereignty, her plans of enforcing hegemony over Elmarth peacefully and working with the local natives to uplift them sounds like a noble goal for us. Even if nation-building, new schools and roads, along with Albalian military helping out the natives is for more pragmatic than altruistic reasons, the end goal still benefits more people rather than violent conquest."

"Now on her politics - we do agree that a strong, centralized government is necessary, especially in times of crisis. While she is obviously a dictator, at the same time it seems that she has gone towards the pragmatic approach, and doesn't have a grudge on democratic countries or anything like that. While we are quite undemocratic as well, having pragmatic relations with democracies is especially useful if it means more investments from those countries through their companies. It also seems that she is more akin to a "democratic socialist" in her actual ideals, and we wonder how close she would be to figures like Sanders who too claim to be demsoc. Her growth, reclamation, lebensraum, and other policies sound like sound actions when you need to recover from a massive war and your country needs extra space for all of the growing population. Even though her politics might not always align with her ideas, we still mostly agree with them, especially of being against "bullying weaker groups" - we got the brunt of it during that border war... Overall, we view Amaki pretty positively, even if some aspects of her and this country are still strange to us."

"Finishing this with personal stuff - She sounds like the type of person we would appreciate, as she is serious, blunt, and doesn't like false politeness/courtesy. Honesty and not being a sycophant is something that seems rare in politics these days. At least her lavish upbringing resulted in her pushing herself to perfection in order to prove that she has a merit on her own, and not sinking further in the hole of being spoiled and abusing her own position in military. Either way, it seems that there have been several dilemmas which she has had to face in her life, like that risky operation - underestimating the danger so your operation gets approved should be a tough moral choice for any military commander. However, we also like that she has a soft side and leniency to those below her or those who are worthy of it. Also, it is good that you at least have a past time which brings you joy, especially if it is cooking with your own offspring. She probably would have been more happy if the war didn't happen and she got to be a judge in the criminal court she studied the law for, but that is not for certain. We also found some quotes, a gallery of her pictures, and a thing called "RP information", but those weren't that interesting - about the same as when Amaki sounds monotonous and disinterested."

"Jeez, Roland, people say you're dumb but not this kind of special dumb. Those Karal-whatever are the furthest things from fucking Nazis. Roland, they have no Jews there. You've got a head between your shoulders but you're putting yourself like a clown here. People wouldn't take you seriously no matter the good you have done. And also, what is an SJW? Bah, I don't like those feminists. Give em concessions then they'll take the extra mile."

EDITING...

"Yeah, yeah, you're a liberal and a people's person and whatever. But me? I am not a people's person. I will tell it how it is; 'I don't care about them'. That would remove the disappointment from their faces. Even though I am a fascists, I see no problem with democracy implemented in other countries. I'm a fascists because I've only seen disorder in both Patagonia and Italy. A hard hand is necessary to guide the people from degeneracy. Ambrosia is blessed with a stable state that makes her feel secure and thus less repressive... And your approach to dealing with private interests groups is interesting. Accountability, peer reviews, and setting standards. A lesser man would crack down businesses and nationalize everything.'

"Your initiatives of forming an alliance of like-minded states is eerily similar to what I'm proposing in South America. Both Patagonia and Bloodshade can't afford to be neutral and sitting ducks in diplomacy. Both must take a proactive role in ensuring its security and economic dominance. But when it comes to whistleblower, she ought to be not too lenient on them. Who knows it takes the tongue of a wastrel to undo everything you've done. It's bad for business and so is provoking the faithful! You're making problems out of thin air.'

The Avant-Gardist State of Patagonia ~~~ Gauchos and Mapuches, orgies and parties, avant-garde art, futurism, syndicalism, the New Man, general strikes, the glorification of violence, spiritual nationalism, esoteric occultism, CIA spooks, Spartanian homosexuality, public sodomy, and more

- There are many things said about Patagonia but few actually know what goes on behind the Andes mountains. Tales of human depravation and man's inner darkest self run wild. A place where avant-garde culture flourish and the artist don't fear the censor. Where all live bold and free under the gaze of the Patron. Yet all dreams will come to an end soon...

Do you seriously think anyone's going to believe your word? Forced off due to PTSD? Sounds like the words of a man who doesn't even know the definition of PTSD. Don't sell yourself as some sort of messiah. It only makes you even more pathetic. If you truly suffered from such a disorder, you'd be shaking and sobbing in a bunker, worrying about the next battle and the horrors that come with it but no, you decide to spit on the face of veterans and sell yourself as some sort of reincarnation of Achilles. Disgusting.

Relatively deep for a woman] Well well, that Jack be handy with his way of the snake and the charming, I see. Arr, I best be looking at him through his scroll of words. Hmm, I would say that he ain't exactly th' best scallywag I 'ave ever met today. Actually, I be nah even sure if he be an okay scallywag - thar be somethin' mighty wrong wit' 'im, 'n I be extremely vexed about th' way he runs thin's around his capital. Curse it all, this "fascism" really be doing the dogs' rounds, are we? I would have took them to my home and make them walk off the plank o' my roof! [Cough, cough] Not the shipmate I want to be with, arr. You best be running away from Captain Samantha, yarr. You are as useless as a blundering squid, and I wouldna 'ave ye around even t' push me pencils 'n me scrolls o' dossier, ya see. [cough]. Swing ya later, ye stinkin' husk of a monkeyshine.
