Monkey 5198 was "cured" by SCP 049. He was eliminated by MTF during a containment breach.

Monkey 5196 made the unfortunate decision to drink heavily to celebrate being cured. A disturbing number of Coronas later, he passed out while walking home in freezing weather and never woke up again.

Monkey 5195 was part of a rescue party dispatched in the first week of Monkey 5196's absence. 5195 knew 5196 well, and had always known drinking to be uncharacteristic of him, especially considering his inability to digest alcohol, as well as his multiple vows to God against drinking. Being good buddies, 5195 was absolutely devastated when his team found the frozen corpse of 5196 in the snow, traces of frozen alcohol in his blood. 5195 swore he would see 5196 again in the afterlife, and decided on self-inflicted death by swallowing a lethal dose of aspirin that evening.

But instead he was hit by a speeding semi-truck not two seconds later, and didn't leave on his own terms.

Monkey 5194 revealed a major government conspiracy to the media, and was found several months later with a bullet in the back of their head. It was declared a suicide.

People tend to assume that Entrance of the Gladiators by Julius Fučík is what that ever so famous circus clown theme is. And in a way, it is. Nobody would ever argue with you on this fact.

However, if you want to be an unlikable, pedantic jerk, the song actually known to be circus music would be a version composed for American woodwind bands (and later transcribed for fairground organs) titled Thunder and Blazes, published by Louis-Philippe Laurendeau. Of course, this information is of absolutely no consequence to anyone.

Monkey 5,188 made a very minor joke about a certain K-Pop group and its (unaffiliated) army happened to be nearby. Said army executed the monkey.

Monkey 5187, lead singer of a generic K-Pop band, was mistaken for a known war criminal and dictator Monkey 5186. After the mistake was clarified posthumously, a separate airstrike was dispatched for Monkey 5186.

Monkey 5185, was sitting in his house in the Paraguayan rain forest, looking over his shoulder, wondering whether the death of his double, Monkey 5186, would throw the Nazi-hunters off his trail, when he was killed by a poison dart from a disgruntled native.

Monkey 5184 took out a loan from a mobster and blew all the money on slots, the enraged mobster cut off the monkey's legs and arms and dropped them in the ocean where they were feasted upon by a frenzy of sharks.

In the case that the facility cannot detect vitals, the cloning process will automatically begin. The clone will then have Monkey 5217's memories and knowledge downloaded, and will implant its own microchip, continuing the cycle, resulting in effective immortality as long as the facility, which is completely secret and near impregnable, exists. Monkey 5217b then continues his project to wipe out his species, and create a new race of super monkeys, who will build a utopia from the resulting clean slate.

Monkey 5217b has completed the second genocide device, and activates it, killing every monkey except 5217b, who then uses his cloning machine to create a new supermonkey race, who will build a glorious utopia.

Monkey 5180, while on board the HMS Hood, was directly hit by a shell from the Bismarck's 38 cm SK C/34 L/52 guns. Despite this, the salvo still caused the Hood to blow up, sinking it and triggering the Hunt for Bismarck, as it was in our timeline.

Monkey 5179 was on the Bismarck but a routine investigation by the Gestapo determined that he was not Aryan enough for the Kriegsmarine, so he was in irons pending his transfer to Buchenwald. His remains were found in the wreck by Robert Ballard.

Monkey 5177 was flying the (incorrectly assembled) helicopter. His last words were, "Was that the main rotor?" before crashing into the river right on top of Monkey 5178.
