Gold Panda – You
Album: Lucky Shiner (2010)
Genre: IDM

☐ This is completely different from what I thought IDM sounded like...
I love this song.

IDM has a fairly noticeable sound, actually. Though usually I hear kinda "Complex" electronic for it, or whatever.

Here's an example of one I like. Though this might fit into more of the "ambient techno" description this album gets.

Though, for you, it might get a bit repetitive after 6 minutes. But I still dig the sounds going in it.

Looking at the song you listened to, people seem iffy about the "IDM" label for it. I guess I can kinda understand.

I love the "It's chillstep

No, it's IDM

No, witch house!"

This is what so many sub genres does ☐

Autechre probably has a lot of others that fit for the "IDM", which is pretty...odd. I might be able to fish up more examples later.

Edit: Huh, Jon Hopkins gets classified with "IDM" as well, and I thought he was just more straightforward.

Though there's also "Microhouse", whatever the heck that is.

The guy also does completely unrelated soundtracks...that don't sound at all similar.

The Greatest Show On Earth - Nightwish

Genre: Symphonic Metal

Album: Endless Forms Most Beautiful

25+ minutes long, great song, has a lot of different elements to it. Little bit of celtic folk, awesome orchestral arrangements, guitar riffs, classical vocals, harsher (but not quite growled) vocals, even freaking Richard Dawkins.

Shudder Before The Beautiful (Instrumental) - Nightwish

Genre: Symphonic Metal

Album: Endless Forms Most Beautiful (Disc 2, Instrumental Version)

Listening to my 2nd CD that I got with the audiobook version when I preordered the album. It's weird listening to certain parts without vocals, but with the sheer amount of instrumentation on this album it's still a great listen.
