Afaik, AN is not really that active in F7 although they appear occasionally, though on the other hand, they are relatively active in General. I've seen them here a few times and I suppose others must have seen them in the same way or more as well, so, fairly well-known.

They have been around since 2018, but it seems that they are not really active in the forums probably with the exception of select threads that they are interested in (they did say above this post that they are not that active recently, however). As a result, I don't think that AN is well-known.

This nation is very much so well-known, to any NSer who has at least any experience in the last several years. Their post number in itself speaks for itself, but I would imagine most seasoned NSers could point them out from a... uhh NS police lineup? I don't know, that analogy sucks, they're just very very well known.
