James, sighing: "Jeremy, why don't you sod off"

Jeremy, shaking his head: "Anyway - last week, we found the Hilux we used on the polar special at a junkyard. So I thought it would be a most wonderful idea to use again. But this time, we head to the south pole, and once again James was my companion"

James: "Unfortunately, since the Toyota has a salvage title we couldn't drive it on UK, so we ventured off to Port of Bristol and turned it into a boat"

Jeremy: "And with the Toybota 2.0, we sailed off onto international waters... Where we got bloody raided by some slope pirates roleplaying as WW2 soldiers"

James: "What were they doing on all the way in Atlantic anyway?"

"There are many who compare Western Secularism to a religion to a new religious parameter and here is the leader of a nation whose guidelines are openly based on faith while adhering to the norms of Occidental societies, well, some of them. You are tolerant of women and men lollygagging amongst each-other and not the opposite sex...always a touchy subject among Westerners, I blame the of the teachings of some Bronze Age desert marauders. An exemplifier that conservatism means different things depending on the context, preserving order doesn't adhere to a similar set of ideals, that is. I am pleasantly surprised that we can see face to face on many things, quite frankly.

What else is there, Magic? 5 years of military service, fulfilling an obligation against the hordesmen of Red China, Red China isn't it? Three husbands in a harem?! You humans sure are different, I can barely handle one. My, you certainly are an unorthodox person. "

"Another Monarch who thinks of themselves as being honorable and dutiful in their quest to reign over and steal the ongoing progress of the working class. Quite frankly, The Council can stand the rulers who step up and admit to themselves that they are abusing their subjects, but the ones that cower on their solid gold throne and sip fancy delicacies from crystal encrusted utensils are truly the most disgusting. And this 'Alexandria' is no different, thinking themselves to be noble, to be godsent, to be honorable from the wealthy hoard. We see the truth.

A petulant girl who dresses herself in fineries, who sat for their growing years hidden away from the hardships of her people. Our own nation was much the same really, except we were the fighters. We were the fighters who knocked down the temple walls and executed the whining parasites that wished to protect their young, their young that they hoped would suck the life from our race in the future generations. No matter how many reforms and positive policies monarchs try to push out, they are always hiding their agenda behind. Their agenda to remain on top, their agenda that they are superior to others, their agenda that questioning their rule is unholy. This is wrong.

The Council needs little else to say, other than that it is rather tiring to see the Human tendency to excuse Monarchy on the grounds of them doing some good. After all, for their disguise to be convincing, they have to give a little. This monarchy is just like the rest; spoiled, overgrown, clinging to life, and stealing from the hard work of the labor class."

-The UCBR High Council

"While I'm not one to call for execution like my brothers and sisters on the stands, I must admit I have no particular enjoyment for the crown princess of Las Palmeras. It is sad to see that even when being shoved through countless hardships by parents and tutors that monarchs keep up their self centered ways, continuing the senseless cycle of oppression that inevitably follows monarchy. I wish only that I could speak to them in their younger years, show them the danger of xenophobia, the danger of self absorption, the danger of exceptionalism. IT is truly dangerous, but far more sad, to see strong men and women corrupted by the thought of ill deserved power.

As an individual they seem rather fine, their neutral tone reminds me a lot of one of my lovers really, and I can understand that a troubled upbringing can lead to such a thing. I hope they have good luck in their future, and I hope they can learn a bit about the world outside them, and learn to enjoy it. Oh, and I would be certain to ask the lady a thing or two about her fighting skills. I used to be a half decent fighter myself a few decades ago, though that came more from my size than any actual skill."

There is not much to criticize from her except her view on the potentially flawed noblesse oblige -- making the people relying on the mercy of a social class above them is nothing but harmful to the structure, as charity is but a state of the mind, which is fickle and subconsciously self-serving, if not downright a tax deduction scheme. A properly set-up welfare system would serve better in elevating the hardship of the lower classes in long-term. But here, I am not to say that the Empress is not inherently oppressive just because of her choice. Charity is good, but reliance on it is not."

PMT/Early FT - Decopunk. Zitragrad is a crowned republic in a planet somewhere else in the universe. The formerly wartorn nation keeps a facade of normalcy and order while enjoying the societal and cultural decadence that marks the new Roaring Twenties. The paranoid authoritarian government tries its best to uphold order in the face of uncertainty, while its people want nothing more than a breathing space. A deal that works, but maybe not in the long run. |

The head honcho, never thought I would have the pleasure to read about a being as complex as Le Patron, and note the I am refusing to refer to him as a person, for reasons that I withhold for the time being until I, consider that they will carry the most impact when aired... As said before, Le Patron is... A complex marvel of ah, 'chameleon politics' as I shall call it. His ability to adapt and overcome the challenges that the circumstances imposed upon, and rise up and then break down the entire societal order in la región Patagónica is as, as astonishing as it abhorrent from a scholar's viewpoint - such as myself - since then I'm maybe able to draw a few parallels with other things I have lived through. His life story is enveloping and full of suffering as, it is full of success though. So I suppose I can see what led him to the person he is today... Or then. Multiversal timekeeping is, quite the headache. Long story short: I love as a study subject, I hate him for the things he did. Not all the suffering in the word, justifies plunging an entire region into perpetual chaos, much less for the sake of an ideology"

QUOTE

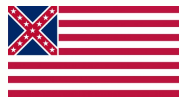

"For all the time I have seen you I can never understand if you are a woman who is influenced by the worms you sell to become what you are or if you are something else that only looks like a woman to make it more comfortable for people to see you. Either way I dread to find out the truth of what you are... But I will accept a shipment of your worms... for study obviously."

QUOTE

"Oh wowzers. They're pretty big-

Er, I mean. Val's are bigger. Much, much bigger! Plus, I prefer- Wait, you went straight on and rescued a child from a demon? S-Such bravery. W-Wait, no. must remain faithful. You probably can't lift as much as her. And, you're short as fuck. So, hah! Take that!

Where am I? Oh yeah, her actual politics. Wait, she's from a magical world? There's an Imperial Republic of America? The fuck?

Uhm, well, I don't like her paternalism and monarchism. A society of lower class people being spoonfed by the elites is one that I find disgust in personally. Honestly, her ideals remind me too much of the paternalistic conservatives of early 21st century Europe, though the economy of her nation actually follows a corporatist model and she is far more isolationist than the 'progressive conservatives' of the EU.

Than again, she did fight against the Yellow Menace, so I have to give her credit there."

Republic of Confederate American States and Syndicates

No, it is not the Confederate States of America. No, it's not the South either. SU stands for 'States and Unions'. The right acronym is RCAS. Please read the Factbook.

Jeremy: "Okay, that could've gone a lot better"

Richard: "You don't say! And you say I'm the accident-prone guy"

James: "Well, because you are"

Jeremy, waving his hands: "Well, enough of that. Now I'm going to ask you to guess what this picture is"

Shows the Hamster/Slow duo a picture of Alexandria

James: "Pin up of a stripper"

Jeremy: "Well, considering he has three sexual partners it's close but not quite. This, my friends, it's supposed to be a head of state"

James: "She surely doesn't look like it. What is she? Trying to draw votes with her buttocks?"

Jeremy: "She's not elected either"

Richard: "Oh, so like the queen?"

Jeremy: "Yes, raised to rule from very little. Apparently she also controls some kind of... Magic"

James: "And you believe it?"

Jeremy: "Apparently I do now because I know the multiverse is real. I met this really nice kid from New Zealand, though he preferred to call it 'SCS' for whatever reason. Also had an awful taste in cars, eugh - Trabants"

Richard: "Any more relevant information on her? Or are you just going to tell us her bust size?"

Jeremy: "Well, that would be an important tidbit. But not now, apparently she believes some people should live at the mercy of those in a higher societal status than them, subsisting off charity"

Richard: "That's bollocks. How could an entire social group subsisting off charity buy food in a regular basis?"

James: "I don't think they wouldn't be able to afford a Dacia Sandero, even"

Jeremy: "Anyway, what do you guys think?"

Richard: "Can we do that thing with the trash bins again?"

Jeremy: "Brilliant idea Hammond. Let's get two bins that say 'Leaders we get' and 'Leaders we don't get'. But where will she go?"

James and Richard, in unison: "Don't get"

Jeremy: "Alright"

Camera fades to black, then goes back on

Richard, putting the finishing touches on the 'Don't get' bin: "Alrighty then! We got the bins"

Jeremy: "Alright, now this"

Jeremy shows to the both of them a picture of Pickett

James: "What is that?"

Richard: "Is that one of those 'Bearded Woman' acts they put out on those freak carnivals?"

Jeremy: "No, apparently that's another head of state. This one apparently directs a pseudo-confederate America with unions, or something like it. So it's not exactly the flag atop the General Lee either"

James: "But, is it a woman?"

Richard: "Nope, I can see the tent he's pitching from here"

Jeremy: "And you are right, Hammond. This is a man"

James: "Oh God"

Richard: "Didn't you mean to say 'Oh Cock?'"

James: "Sod of-"

Jeremy, cutting them both off: "Anyway, time is running thin as it is, he is a racist-"

James and Richard, in unison: "Don't get"

Jeremy: "But I haven't even said anything about his policies!"

James: "Jeremy, here - or at least Hammond and I - don't get racism outside of jest. I think it's for the better you just chuck him in the bin"

Jeremy, doing as suggested: "Well, don't say I didn't try, Pickett"
