I am quite sympathetic that you have your PTSD to go through, and it is something that no one deserves to have. I can only hope that with your advanced medicines, as well as with the people around you, that you will find a way to cope and deal with it. It's impressive and resourceful how you wrote a constitution on toilet paper and in blood because that is a seemingly difficult job to do; tissue paper is just an awful way to write stuff on. You should know from the get-go that I am unfortunately not really a fan of a lot your politics, so there was that! I mean, some of them are okay (ahem, anti-racism, that is good!), but others? Nah, you don't seem to be it! A rather colorless world you have created, even though I will admit that you have seen a lot of success in your own way. Lumière du Pacifique (1965)

- Set in the world of TNO in the backdrop of an Axis victory, Lazarie is a former Vichy French protectorate-turned Imperial Japanese collaborationist state in the southern Pacific.
- A kingdom and an odd Francophone among the Co-Prosperity Sphere; it attempts to do its best to maintain its autonomy and quasi-democracy from the empire's hands. Ruled by an Orleanist branch in this Pacific island and the Japanese garrison stands on guard for any "OFN incursion".

"So, I guess at this point I'm giving my opinion to just about everything, huh? Sylvia Lucienne Dellamorte, and her twin Julianne are like two protagonists ripped out of a half - alternate history, half fantasy novel, though I will be the first to admit, I would have never thought of the concept of a story involving magic, character... And one of the most evil nations under a horrid government seen in Human history.

Ah, but I get distracted, do I not? Syliva and Julianne worked together under the 'supposed' last days of the Third Reich, under a unit with... Well, magic? The sheer hatred for the Soviet Union drove this unit, and brought Germany from the brink of defeat to crushing the Communist threat. Well, in our universe, the Soviets ruled until 1991, so I suppose for you, it's a good thing they fell much earlier. It's good that they did not follow National Socialism themselves, in fact I think I read that the maniac Adolf and other prominent NAZI figures were overthrown by the pair, even executed in most cases, so that's good. However they cling to German Nationalism dearly, and that could cause major tension still, but at least the people in charge of the extermination of millions of 'undesirables' were given no quarter, on both sides of the political spectrum.

As for the twins themselves? Should I exist in their universe, I'd like to assume I could come to like the two. Both seem easy to anger, but Julianne seems more passive than her twin. They like their dolls, sweets and other little things. I wonder if they've ever dabbled into writing? It's a great craft, to use your imagination to create your fantasies like they exist in the real world.

Well, I should probably return to my own universe, and country now. Christ, if I am dreaming maybe I underestimate how creative my mind may be."

Alaska

The Tsardom of

Царство Аляски, or the Russian Empire lives on in it's old colony, Alaska after the conclusion of the Russian Revolution of 1917. Standing with it's allies against the Moscow Accord of Russia and it's alliance members, nevertheless world tensions dwindle and the people of Alaska grow ever more desensitised with the conservative status quo, and their insistence on clinging to a now redundant past.
