"Ah, Comrade Rasputin. You'll never meet another man quite like him if you live a thousand years, which I guess in his case might be possible. I guess there are worse things for a leader than to have a flawless complexion at 67 - whether or not he ages doesn't matter too much anyway. What does matter is what he's done for his islands and for his people, and brother has he done a lot. I've got to respect his politics, and as a revolutionary and as a soldier, he's more than earned my adoration. The Yegla Islands are in good hands under their Vozhd."

"It comes as no surprise to any man or maiden that Thomas Wiker and I share very little in common. Our social, political and economics beliefs strongly oppose each other's, and because of this opposition, I cannot say whether we will ever cooperate or 'get along' with one another anytime in the near future. I personally disapprove of Marxism and its agents, though I acknowledge that sometimes a nation's rulers become tyrannical and far too comfortable in their hubris than one should be, thus leading to revolution and the emergence of dangerous governments. I shall remain wary of Thomas Wiker and his intentions."

Only a sensible immigration policy will prevent the fringe groups from taking power and dethroning your rightful government which I truly admire as your goals are pure and noble by heart to bring joyous happiness your people and forge a model that will bring the world towards a brighter light. #### Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

"Ol' Mercer of Rapture thinks, that civilization is something, that must be all uptight and overregulated. Yes, indeed he has reasons to think that, because he did manage to save the Rapture from anarchy, but why won't he accept the fact, that libertarian countries, that actually function, exist. Why won't he open his mind and accept, that not everything has to be about utility? Pleasure and happiness has it's merit in the life, and things, that don't harm others are not a crime.

If he only was more accepting, he'd be like a totally awesome dude and maybe a homie! Those wannabe "civilized and respected, upstanding leaders" are just... hypocrites. They wear those smart and fancy outfits, never engage in pleasures and fightin' and speak politely. But... to order a slaughter of thousands of innocents for the sake of their prestige, or to treat their relatives as commodity...

Or backstab eachothers, saying, that there are no allies, only interests. For example, to them if I smash someone's skull with a wardclub, it would be considered murder. But one of those orders a genocide, that would be considered statistics... I might be naive to some, but at least I ain't some genocidal shithhead and my homies ain't pawns, okay!

Dude, we *can't* convert to your lawfulness just like that! Skyhooked doesn't simply work like that, we ride the wave of that awesome chaos, while handling it's side effects! It's natural to us to be all about freedom, just like it's natural to you to be all about order. Just accept it."-Shawn Bjornson Unfortunately, as far as positive characteristics go that's about it. As for his negative attributes... Where do you want me to begin? The dragon horde of wealth he's managed to amass? The imperialist projects he's undertaken? The monsters whispering nefarious orders into his ear? To say there's not much common ground for us to stand on is an understatement. If he continues to pursue his imperialist aims in the Americas, however, I'm sure we can leave him plenty of common ground to share with his men, the earthworms certainly wouldn't mind. "Mr. Valentijn, from the moment I met you, I was always in awe of your pleasant, forgiving nature. Unfortunately, after much contemplation, I've found that meekness was never something to be proud of. You're a towering behemoth of a man and I guess I just can't wrap my head around the fact that you're so resistant to the idea of using your powers for the benefit of others. Just look at me! Look at you! We've got so much power in our hands and yet we squander it. I keep on asking myself, why do I let such power seep from my hands? When I will take a leap of faith and transform myself?

I've started to reflect on my past and while it is rather tough for one to admit, I've been wasting my power for the sake of a moral code that I've built in my head just because it makes me feel good. I stopped myself from drinking blood because it's abhorrent apparently. Do you stop yourself from reaching your potential, Mr Valentjin? I know it's depressing but sit down with yourself and think about that.

Seriously, ask yourself some important questions Valentjin. Stop trying to act like you live in a lovely world because the moment the bubble bursts, you'll turn into a monster and your happy-go lucky character is going to fly away into the wind. You can close your ears all you want but the world is full of monsters, I'm not saying you should be a monster. I'm just saying you should be realistic. Enough with the flower-picking!

*The more I think about my idiotic moral code, the more I wish I could go back in time and stop myself from slowing myself....Oh boy, did I pass out for a second? Almost feels like there was a gap in my memory. Oh hey Val, lovely to see you here! Hope your day is going well! I'm not sure it can even be considered a nation, honestly."

"Though I respect the Italians and their nation, fascism was one of their more questionable contributions to humanity. The Duce seems like a very patriotic and hardworking man, however, I remain very skeptical of his intentions. So long he does not act like a half-brained tyrant and does not interfere with Kyrian interests, I can tolerate him."

"Phoenix is no different from the comic book hero, Batman, he has the wealth and power by the position he inherited from his predecessors but instead of using that position to truly help the thousand to millions in need, they both prefer to pick the ineffective method by attempting to save everyone singlehandedly, resulting in many being left without a hero."

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

"I've stated just about everything I need to state about Mercer in the past, but I suppose reiterating my points would be rather enlightening for those who didn't pay attention last time. Despite my general disagreements with his overly lax civic nationalist beliefs, just about everything else this man happens to believe in is rather agreeable, I'd say. Despite my....ahem, unorthodox lifestyle, I choose to believe that we can both despise the decadent debauchery and degeneracy that sweeps the streets of so many "tolerant" nations. To crush such filth underneath a boot is to ensure that normalcy for both the average citizen and people who aren't...well, the straightest crayons in the box...can be fulfilled."

What happens when you cross anime powers and overpowered leaders with furies, all written by a bored Homestuck fan with too much time? Well, you get Rumei. A multiethnic, FT republic with both might and magic that let it conquer the entire Orion Arm.

A 7.6 (this is probably outdated but I can't do the calculations rn) (Tier 9, Level 6, Type 9) according to this index.

Come to The Orion, we got CULTURE and FURRIES

Show Recommendation: Cobra Kai. It is very, very good.

IC Name: Roman Republic, or simply Rome (Rumei). Occasionally called the Ignisian Republic. Current year is 2697.

"He is one of the better environmentalist leaders in the universe that others should emulate. Even if he's not the greatest choice in practice (if you're human), I believe that under him, life for the Ignisians should be pretty good. That's pretty damn optimistic. They've been never hungry and exhausted for decades and are now drinking as much as they please."
