I interpret this banner as representing the combined strength of the collective, and the glorifying of the shining achievements and limitless potential of a united people.

“ Disgraces wrote:
I have no idea

I have a similar interpretation for this banner, as it seems to also exalt the strength of the collective, though with its fascistic imagery as as opposed to the AN's communistic symbolism. Perhaps it also identifies the individual as being weak, and only through coming together with others can a person hope to gain purpose in life.

What's the deal with rainbows? I mean sure, they are pretty, but why do people think they're gay? So there's a rainstorm, then it stops and the sun comes out. When people look at the new rainbow, do people think, "Oh, it's pretty!", or do they think, "That's gay"? What is up with that?

Maybe it's depicting a assassination of a famous person, their leaders assassinating a unloyal general, or it's just showing assassination is common there.
